Report Supports Kennedy Proposal For Peace Corps

Names Wirtz Aide In Labor Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect John F. Kennedy received a report Saturday backing his proposal for a peace corps to assist underdeveloped nations but rebuffing his suggestion that young men serving in it be exempted from the military draft.

The report was submitted by Max Millikan, director of the Center for International Studies at Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Millikan undertook the study at Kennedy's request.

Kennedy spent most of his day here discussing with political advisers appointments for the many jobs below the Cabinet level that still remain to be filled.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, the Democratic national chairman, said after nearly 3½ hours at Kennedy's Georgetown ho[illegible] that "we went over a long list of names below the Cabinet level."

He told newsmen a lot of progress was made but expressed doubt all the job openings could be filled before Kennedy's inauguration on Jan. 20.

Before Kennedy left for New York, aides put out a statement announcing Kennedy's selection of William Willard Wirtz of Chicago, a law partner of Adlai E. Stevenson, to be undersecretary of labor. The appointments of five other officials to serve in the Labor Department under Arthur J. Goldberg, Kennedy's choice for secretary of labor, also were announced.

Jackson disclosed that Kennedy will address the Democratic National Committee at a meeting here on Jan. 21, the day after he takes over the White House.

At that time Jackson plans to submit his resignation as national chairman. John M. Bailey, Connecticut state chairman, is expected to be elected his successor.

Bailey was among those who participated in the discussion of appointments to be made by the new administration. Others present included Robert F. Kennedy, the president-elect's brother and attorney general designate, and Lawrence F. O'Brien, who is to be the new president's special assistant for personnel and congressional relations.

Among others who called on Kennedy later were Gov. David L. Lawrence of Pennsylvania and Matthew M. McCloskey, also of Pennsylvania, the treasurer of the Democratic National Committee.

Lawrence said he discussed appointments to federal jobs in Pennsylvania and also pledged cooperation in carrying out the distressed areas program Kennedy will submit to Congress.

Report Ten Moslems Killed In Attack On Polling Place

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP) — Nationalist rebels attacked a polling station Saturday at the edge of the Sahara. Ten Moslems were reported killed and about the same number wounded.

Aside from sporadic bombings, this was the first major report of violence in the voting on President Charles de Gaulle's offer of self-determination to Algeria.

Officials reported the rebels attacked a voting office at Gueltet, located about 225 miles southeast of Oran.

Moslem auxiliary troops guarding the station fired back at the rebel band, wounding some while others fled. One soldier was killed and three wounded, the officials said.

The other dead and injured included rebels and the Moslems who had gathered to vote in defiance of an order from the rebel high command warning them to boycott the referendum.

The voting in Algeria is spread over three days to enable troops to move from one voting area to another in overwhelming numbers. Metropolitan France votes on the final day Sunday along with the two nerve centers of Algeria—the capital of Algiers and the western city of Oran.

Preparing for the worst, officials in Algiers barred the streets to big trucks — which could easily be wheeled into place as barricades — and even ordered private cars to stay off some main thoroughfares Sunday.

Five bombs exploded in Algiers Friday. A Moslem nationalist was killed in a clash with soldiers at Guelma.

The rebels demanded that their followers boycott the referendum.

There were large numbers of abstentions. The authorities said about 65 per cent of the electorate appeared to be voting. This would be about 14 per cent less than in the constitutional referendum of 1958 when 79.6 per cent turned out.

In France and Algeria there are some 32 million voters, with Algeria furnishing about five million — almost four million of them Arabs and other North Africans.

De Gaulle has served notice in nationwide radio and TV speeches that, without overwhelming support, he would again step aside and return to political exile. He indicated he would consider an abstention as damaging as a "no" ballot.

Carpentier, Powell Quit Feuding, Kerner Will Be Inaugurated

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier and Democrat Paul Powell formally agreed Saturday night to end their House speakership dispute, assuring the inauguration of Governor-elect Otto Kerner Monday.

Carpentier and Powell issued a joint statement, outlining the procedure which will be followed when the House convenes at 9 a.m. Monday — three hours before Kerner is to be installed.

The statement said that Powell, who claims he was elected speaker at Wednesday's first-day meeting, will open the Monday session. Then he will relinquish the gavel to Carpentier, who will preside during the selection of a speaker.

Carpentier and Powell were not brought together for a face-to-face meeting on ending the prolonged battle. Instead, the negotiations were handled by teams of legal advisors representing each side in the controversy.

Republican leaders conceded Saturday that organization of the House likely will see Powell, veteran Democratic leader from Vienna, re-elected speaker despite the 89-88 Republican majority.

The speakership controversy got the legislature off to one of its most chaotic starts in history.

The speakership controversy — which got the legislature off to one of its most chaotic sessions in history — has swirled around Powell and Secretary of State Charles F. Carpentier, a Republican.

By agreeing that each can play a role in reconvening the House Monday, both indicated they were anxious to end the stalemate which has hamstrung the Legislature since opening day last Wednesday.

Emissaries of Powell and Carpentier met Saturday in an attempt to iron out technicalities to complete the compromise.

Carpentier said Powell, elected speaker after Republicans walked out opening day, can reconvene the session but that he, Carpentier, will preside over the House until a temporary speaker is chosen.

Carpentier said the official House journal would not recognize Powell's opening day election by 88 Democrats as legal.

Failure of the Republican-controlled Senate to recognize the election of Powell has prevented the Legislature from certifying the Nov. 8 election results, a step necessary for Kerner's inauguration.

Carpentier expressed doubts that all 89 House Republicans would be on hand Monday and conceded that Powell's election is a virtual certainty.

"He's got the votes and he's known it all along," Carpentier declared. "I'll be greatly surprised if we have more than 87 (Republican) representatives present Monday."

Carpentier said Rep. William Pollack of Chicago, the GOP caucus choice for speaker, met with little success in his effort to get three ailing Chicago Republicans to attend Monday's session.

Carpentier said one of them, Rep. August J. Ruf, might be on hand, but doubted Reps. Walter C. McAvoy and Peter J. Miller would attend. All are employes of the Democratic-controlled Chicago Sanitary District.

Ku Klux Klan Demonstrates In Jacksonville, Fla.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Ku Klux Klansmen wearing robes and hoods drove through downtown Jacksonville Saturday in a demonstration apparently protesting a federal court order for integration of the city's recreational facilities.

A Klan leader who identified himself as C. L. Craig of Atlanta, Ga., grand dragon of the U.S. Klans, professed not to see any demonstration and said the klansmen were just in town for a meeting north of Jacksonville.

Few Negroes were on the streets and the scene was quiet in sharp contrast to another Saturday here last August when groups of whites and Negroes fought with fists and sticks amid throngs of shoppers.

Most of the klansmen rode in cars with Georgia and North Florida license tags. American and Confederate flags flew from the fenders, radio aerials or windows. On the sides of the cars were signs such as "U.S. Klans, KKK."

The federal court order to integrate this city's recreational facilities will go into effect Monday. It was issued last month by U.S. District Judge Bryan Simpson.

There has already been some integration in seating at hockey and basketball events in Jacksonville's new $3 million Coliseum. There was no trouble.

Conference On Aging Opens Amid Charges Of Rigging

WASHINGTIN (AP) — The White House conference on aging opens Monday amid charges of rigging and with the prospect it may become a political donnybrook.

The four-day conference — bringing together about 2,500 delegates from every state — is designed to provide some new methods for dealing with the financial, health and social problems of retired persons.

One of the key questions will be: How far should the federal government go to help the retired pay their medical bills?

It's this question—liberally laced with political overtones — which has prompted the charge of rigging the conference.

Prof. Wilbur Cohen of Michigan University, an architect of the present Social Security System, said several days ago the American Medical Association, private insurance interests and business representatives had stacked the conference. He said organized medicine would manipulate the conference as an excuse to block action by Congress on providing medical care for the aged under Social Security.

He said Saturday he feels so strongly about the matter he will not be a delegate to the conference, even though his invitation to attend came from President Eisenhower.

The AMA, most of the insurance industry and the Chamber of Commerce have opposed the Social Security health insurance plan pushed by the AFL-CIO and welfare organizations.

They've called it "socialized medicine" and said the answer to meeting the medical care problems of older people should come mainly through private and voluntary health insurance.

They have had the support of the Eisenhower administration, while the Democratic platform and President-elect John F. Kennedy have supported the medical care program under Social Security. Kennedy has announced it will be one of his major proposals in Congress.

In responding to Cohen, the AMA called him a long-time exponent of socialized medicine and said he "is prepared to distort the truth and engage in reckless smears in an effort to mislead the people."

BOB HOPE OBEYS DOCTOR, TAKES IT EASY

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Bob Hope, obeying doctor's orders, spent a quiet day Saturday resting and watching a football game on television.

Hope, who suffered a dizzy spell while playing golf last Thursday, said he plans to take it easy until his next television program next month.

His doctor said the comedian is suffering from fatigue.

Cuba Claims Seizure Of U.S. Arms Airdrops

Castro Presses 'Invasion' Fabrication

HAVANA (AP) — Supplementing its claim that a U.S. invasion threatens, the Cuban government announced Saturday it has seized two airdrops of weapons originated in the United States and destined for insurgents here.

The invasion scare Prime Minister Fidel Castro started nine days ago is beginning to strain Cubans and their industries. The big sugar harvest is at hand, but the workers are busy at other things—putting on militia uniforms and manning the Soviet and Czech weapons that bristle everywhere on this Caribbean island.

A defense spokesman said Castro's militia grabbed one arms collection of pistols, rifles, machine guns, mortars and bazookas dropped west of Havana in Pinar del Rio Province.

Soldiers pounced on a second load of munitions and medicine parachuted from a plane in the Escambray Mountains of Las Villas Province, the government said.

If the report is true, insurgents still holed up in those areas suffered a severe blow by losing thousands of dollars worth of fighting equipment.

Ruptured Cuban-American relations became complete Saturday when the Swiss Embassy assumed protection of U.S. interests in Cuba and all but three U.S. Embassy officials flew home.

The breach that began with Cuba's order to shrink the size of the U.S. Embassy staff and was climaxed by President Eisenhower's formal break in relations now leaves several hundred Americans to continue life here with their own wits.

The powerful military concentrations in Cuba's cities dislodge normal business and industrial activity. But war games and total mobilization have deeper effects in the countryside.

West To Offer Soviet Plan To Halt Civil War In Laos

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Western powers plan to propose to the Soviet Union early next week a formula for international action to halt the civil war in Laos and the danger of an expanding cold war battleground in Southeast Asia.

Britain will play the leading role in making the approach to the Moscow government. The heart of the formula is to revive an international control commission for Laos on the understanding that it would deal with, though not necessarily recognize formally, the present pro-American government of Premier Prince Boun Oum.

The United States, in a brief "white paper" on the Laotian crisis, charged Saturday that the Soviet Union has been expanding its airlift to the leftist and pro-Communist rebels fighting the Boun Oum government. But the statement also further opened the door to manuevers aimed at a peaceful solution.

The document was released by the State Department.

It said there are three ways the United States can contribute to a solution of the Laotian problem.

One way, it said, is "by joining with other free nations to support and maintain the independence of Laos through whatever measures seem most promising."

The other two points by current U. S. policy, the statement said, are to tell the world "the true nature of Communist intentions and actions in Laos," and to show that the United States itself does not seek to make Laos a Western military ally.

In effect, the statement pledged strong and continuing U. S. support for a Laos free of Communist control. It called for a peaceful solution of the crisis—with at least an implication of willingness to accept full Laotian neutrality.

Highly placed diplomatic officials said the reality behind this U. S. policy position is this: The United States is now definitely in favor of reconstituting the three-nation international control commission which was first created by the 1954 Geneva conference and disbanded, as no longer necessary, two years ago.

Britain led the move for reviving the commission, comprised of India, Poland and Canada.

Eisenhower Bids Army Farewell

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President Eisenhower Saturday bid the Army a sentimental farewell.

The soldiers of Ft. Gordon put on a review for their commander-in-chief.

Recalling that he entered the Army 50 years ago and had been honored at many such ceremonies in the past, Eisenhower said: "This is the last review I shall ever receive in my life."

Eisenhower said the review gave him a chance to say goodbye to the Army.

"In you and your sister services the United States has a shield no enemy dare attack or attempt to tear down," Eisenhower said.

Eisenhower flew here at the behest of Brig. Gen. Howard M. Hobson, Ft. Gordon commander, who long has wanted to put on a big military show for the President.

A smaller review was planned for Eisenhower when he was last here four weeks ago. It was called off because of rain, but the President promised Hobson to come back before leaving the White House Jan. 20 if he could find the time.

About 2,700 soldiers, including some WAC units, stood stiffly at attention as Eisenhower rode before them standing up in a jeep. Hobson stood beside him.

Eisenhower landed at Augusta's Bush Field shortly after 10 a.m. after a flight from the capital in his personal plane, Columbine III. From Bush Field he flew by helicopter to Ft. Gordon.

After the Ft. Gordon ceremony, Eisenhower flew by helicopter to the Augusta National Golf Club for some golf.

He plans to fly back to Washington in midafternoon Sunday.

Report Red Troops Near Laos Royal Capital; King Returns

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Pro-Communist rebel forces were reported advancing Saturday on Luang Prabang, but most indications were that the royal capital is not immediately threatened.

King Savang Vathana apparently held to this view by flying back to Luang Prabang after several earlier delays. He had spent several days in Vientiane, 140 miles south of the royal city, for the formal installation of Premier Prince Boun Oum's new anti-Communist government.

The king's departure indicated rebel attacks in the Luang Prabang area are isolated clashes between guerrilla units of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao and patrols of the royal Laotian army.

A Pathet Lao column was reported advancing on Luang Prabang. French military sources in Vientiane indicated the city was being increasingly threatened. Other Western military men placed the column still 60 miles north of the city.

(Radio Peiping, quoting a Laotian rebel broadcast, claimed the military post of Nam Pac, on the Hou River southeast of Luang Prabang, fell to the rebels Wednesday.)

On the military front farther south, Information Minister Bouavan Norasing claimed the rebel base of Vang Vieng, 65 miles north of Vientiane, was captured by government forces Thursday.

Vang Vieng has been a major receiving point for Soviet airdrops to the rebels. Soldiers under Capt. Kong Le, a Laotian paratroop commander, retreated to the mountain-ringed Vang Vieng Valley Dec. 15 after Boun Oum's men drove them from Vientiane. Kong Le later was reported to have moved northward with his forces and joined in the major rebel offensive that seized and now holds the strategic central Plaine des Jarres.

Like many of the government's statements on the military situation, the report of the fall of Vang Vieng was received with skepticism by Westerners.

An Associated Press correspondent drove to the front lines midway between Vang Vieng and Vientiane only a few hours before Bouavan's news conference. Officers at the front told the newsman pro-Communists still controlled the village.

Nation Begins Centennial Observance Of Civil War

By JOHN O. B. WALLACE
Associated Press Staff Writer

At a revered spot on the upper West Side of Manhattan, in the early Sunday afternoon, hundreds of uniformed figures will stand solemnly at attention.

The scene will be Grant's Tomb on Riverside Drive, not far from Columbia University. At a fixed time, the heavy silence will be broken by the roll of a chorus of drums. Then a military band will play the Star Spangled Banner.

Meanwhile, several hundred miles to the south in Virginia, there will be a quiet ceremony at the Lexington tomb of Gen. Robert E. Lee.

Then, throughout the nation, church bells will toll. Thus will begin the centennial observance of the Civil War. The observance will last four years.

President Eisenhower urged all Americans to join in the observance, and in a statement.

"This observance affords us a special opportunity to pay tribute to those Americans whose heroism and sacrifice, a century ago, comprise a part of our national heritage," said the President's statement.

"America then was a nation divided. Today she possesses a national and spiritual unity which has been nurtured and developed over the years — and sometimes defended at a great price. This unity provides a base for all that we do as a people."

The American Civil War — the war Between the States — actually broke out April 12, 1861, when Confederate Gen. P.G.T. Beauregard shelled Fort Sumter at Charleston, S.C.

Parents Of Two Adopted Boys Shot And Killed

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — The parents of two adopted teen-age boys were shot and killed Saturday in the family's home, and police arrested the older of the boys.

Authorities said the .22 caliber automatic rifle from which the shots were fired was found under the seat of a family car in which the older boy was picked up about two hours after the shooting.

The youth's younger brother telephoned police and sobbed out a story of the killings. He said his brother had fled in the family car.

The bullet-riddled bodies of H. Malone Dresbach, 47, a Washington lawyer, and his wife, Shirley, 46, were found in separate rooms of the red brick house near the shore of Chesapeake Bay, about 15 miles south of here.

Police Capt. Elmer F. Hagner said Dresbach and his wife both had been shot in the back. Dresbach's body was sprawled on the kitchen floor. His wife was dead in a bedroom when police arrived.

Hagner indicated the double shooting may have been the aftermath of a reprimand the couple had given the older boy after he came home late from a high school basketball game Friday night.

Held without charge was Wayne Dresbach, 15, a freshman member of the wrestling team at Southern High School at nearby Lothian.

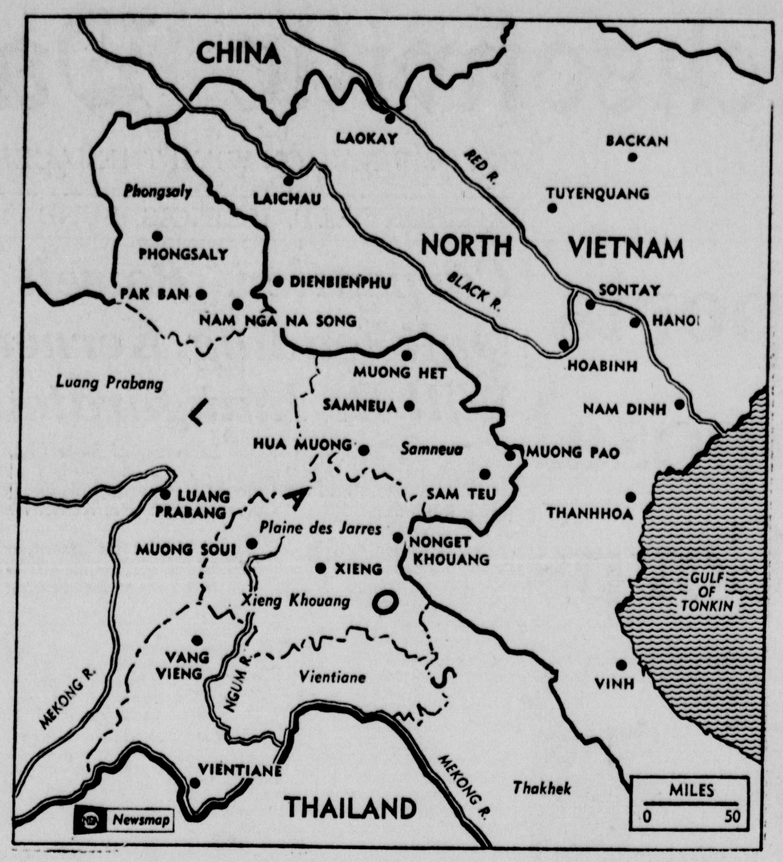
LAOS IS A JUNGLE—



King Savang Vatthana has called an extraordinary session of the Laotian parliament in Vientiane, the administrative capital, to give Premier Boun Oum's pro-Western government a vote of confidence. Boun Oum replaced ousted Prince Souvanna Phouma who had been installed by the pro-Communist Pathet Lao ((Free Laos) guerrilla forces. Right wing troops drove the Pathet Lao out of Vientiane (mapped below). Prince Souphanouvong, half-brother of Souvanna, known as the "Red Prince of Laos," commands the leftist guerrillas. In a protest to the United Nations, the Laotian government has charged that troops from Communist North Viet Nam have invaded Laos on the Plaine des Jarres, especially around Xieng Khouang (see above). Laos calls it "unprovoked aggression."

The Global View:

Laos Will Be First Of Many Little Wars If Red Chinese Can Help It

By LEON DENNEN
Newspaper Enterprise Analyst

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. — (NEA) The illusion that Red intervention in Laos is a "local war" is as dangerous to the free world's survival as the view once held by wishful thinkers that Mao Tse-tung was an "agrarian reformer" and Fidel Castro a misguided idealist.

What we are witnessing now is a classical piece of Communist diversionist strategy. It is designed to pull the wool over the West's eyes while Red China and Communist North Viet Nam tighten their grip on Laos.

The strategy is simple: accuse your opponent of the aggressive act you yourself intend to commit. Such tactics have been used by all dictators.

Thus, at the exact moment that the U.S. has to defend itself in the U.N. Security Council against Castro's fantastic charge that American Marines are about to invade Cuba, Red forces are actually invading Laos.

It seems clear the Communists' newest armed attack in Southeast Asia is really the first sortie of the Asian (Chinese) branch of the re-established Communist International.

At the recent Moscow conclave of Communist leaders from 81 countries, the global roles of Russia and China were carefully defined. Khrushchev, to lull the West into false security, will continue to preach coexistence and even seeek "friendly" contact with President-elect Kennedy. Mao's task is to break up the "imperialist powers" by striking at their weakest links.

This was spelled out in the manifesto issued in Moscow. With all the confidence of Karl Marx writing the original "Communist Manifesto," the document adopted states clearly:

"All the people still languishing in colonial bondage must be given every support."

"Colonialist" is now the Communists' favorite name for the U.S. and the non-Communist nations. "Every support" obviously implies military aid.

The Moscow manifesto leaves no doubt on this score. The creation of "independent national democracies"—a category which can be stretched to include not only Laos but also Cuba under Castro, Egypt under Nasser and even the Congo under Lumumba—is now the primary objective of the Communist International's policies.

The stakes in Laos are high and time does not work for the free world. The fall of the little kingdom to the Communists would put tremendous pressure on pro-Western South Korea, South Viet Nam, Cambodia and Thailand. It might make untenable the whole Western position in Sotuheast Asia.

The attack on Laos, co-ordinated with Castro's anti-U.S. action in the U.N., is obviously only a prelude to a rash of "national liberation wars." If Khrushchev and Mao are convinced that an atomic war can be avoided there is nothing to stop them from exploiting Western weakness also in Africa and Latin America. They can back Red fifth columns to a degree that is compatible with their interest to avoid an atomic conflict.

In this way Moscow and Peiping can retain the intiative. But they could also withdraw or pull back should they find themselves at a tactical disadvantage.

Will history repeat itself in Laos? Britain and India have doubts about the wisdom of all-out U.S. military aid to the pro-Western regime of Prince Boun Oum. They believe that unless the legitimate Laotian government broadens its structure by including neutralist and even Pathet Lao ((Communist) elements no solution of the Laotian conflict is possible.

Memories of the wishful thinkers are, unfortunately, short. It was the suggestion of a similar "solution" in China—the inclusion of Mao and his agrarian reformers in Chiang Kai-shek's government—that preceded the Red takeover of the Chinese mainland.

Is there any reason to believe that the Communists would act differently in Laos? Indeed, how long would it be before the neutralists and Pathet Lao Communists, with Mao's help, would dominate Boun Oum's government and convert it into a full-fledged Communist regime?

Deep Inside Ethiopia Lives Tribe Called 'House Of Israel'

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (AP) —Hidden away in the wilds of northern Ethiopia lives a mysterious tribe who call themselves the "House of Israel," but who speak no Hebrew and do not know the meaning of the word Jew.

Living in a remote and almost inaccessible mountain region north of Lake Tana, these people are known in Ethiopia as "Falashas" but often are called "black Jews." Their scriptures are the Old Testament and their religious practices those prescribed in the Pentateuch, the first five books of the Bible.

They call themselves "Sons of Abraham" and "House of Israel" and have a priestly system similar to that of primitive Judaism.

Does this mean the Falashas are a long-lost Hebrew tribe who in the dim past went into seclusion in Ethiopia?

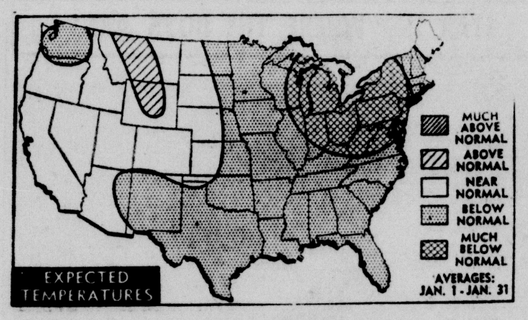
If the Falashas should suddenly decide to emigrate to Israel—as have several other Middle Eastern Jewish communities—the state of Israel would have to decide officially whether they are Jews.

So far, the Falashas have shown no signs of moving to Israel. Probably the great majority of the estimated 25,000 "black Jews" are not even aware there is a state of Israel today. The Israelis have taken seven Falashas to Israel on scholarships, and one well-educated Falasha is connected with the Hebrew University in Jerusalem.

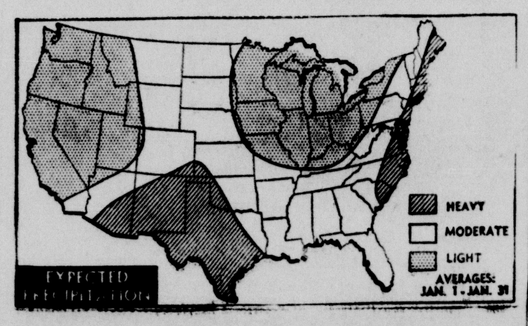
Like Jews everywhere, the Falashas use the Old Testament as their Bible. They observe rigidly the observances and feasts prescribed in the Pentateuch. They strictly observe Saturday as the Sabbath. The word Falasha itself is translated "emigrant" and could imply they are a community in exile.

NO JANUARY THAW

Maps show U.S. Weather Bureau's 30-day estimate of temperatures and precipitation for the month of January.



Eastern half of the nation — especially Great Lakes, Ohio Valley and Middle Atlantic States—will be cold in January.



Weather Bureau says precipitation will exceed normal over the Southwest and Atlantic Coast, lesser amounts elsewhere.

As I See It

by E. W. BROWN

There's another "clean - up campaign" underway . . . this time in space. Some folks, taking a futuristic squint up in the air, are suddenly concerned about all the stuff everybody's shooting into the sky. So far, almost 70 satellites, space-probes, and pieces of same are orbiting the earth and sun. According to experts, about half of it is nothing but "space garbage" . . . dead satellites, rocket bodies, and bits and hunks of stray metal. They're worried that with the increasing rate of new launchings planned . . . from 5,000 to as many as 50,000 by 1975 . . . we soon won't be able to see the stars we're shooting at. They're bound to find a solution for the space pollution, but it just goes to show. You find a solution for one problem . . . exploring space to find more living space . . . and the solution suddenly becomes a problem in itself!

The local philosopher dropped by to remark on a friend who has desire, but lacks ambition: "He's waiting for the door of opportunity to be equipped with an electric-eye opening device." There's no need for you to wait for values in used cars. We have them new . . . sharp, clean-looking cars that are mechanically sound and thoroughly reconditioned by top mechanics. And they are now priced below their true values. Come in and look them over and take a test drive soon. E. W. BROWN, 406 South Main. Phone 5-4333.

North Carolina's Gov. Hodges Is Example Of Modern American Success Story

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — The American success story, 20th century version, is illustrated by the business and political careers of Luther Hartwell Hodges.

The rise of the tenant farmer's son to textile executive, and now secretary of commerce in the Cabinet of President-elect John F. Kennedy, proves again that hard work and ambition can take a man to the top.

It shows, too, that in these days a strong sense of public relations is a valuable asset.

Hodges, a silver-haired dynamo at 62, skillfully employed public relations techniques in the industrial development campaign that trademarked his six years as North Carolina governor.

He persuaded bankers and businessmen to accompany him (at their expense) on trips about the country, and even to Western Europe, looking for new industry to aid the state in the transition from a largely agricultural economy.

These travels and contacts gave Hodges wide exposure in business and government circles, and became a factor in his selection for the commerce post.

Hodges greets each day with boundless enthusiasm and a fresh carnation in his buttonhole.

With his driving energy and business efficiency, Hodges combines a Boy Scout's idealism. He is a salesman who believes in his product—whether it is textiles, the responsibility of businessmen in government, or the free enterprise system.

"Some of my friends call me 'Pollyanna,'" he said wryly.

Whatever his decisions in the policy field, it's a good bet some reorganization is in store for the Commerce Department. The first day Hodges was in the governor's office in the North Carolina capitol, he began punching a bank of buzzers on his desk, "partly for devilment, and partly to find out what would happen."

He chuckled at the recollection. "People started coming in from back offices and everywhere. I said, 'What do you do. And why do you do it?'"

After 30 years with Marshall Field & Co. (now Fieldcrest Mills Inc.), Hodges decided in 1950 he had reached the practical top in the business world. He was vice president and general manager of the company he had joined as an office boy.

He retired, and went to Germany for a tour of duty as chief of the industry division of the Economic Cooperation Administration. Then he spent six months as consultant with the State Department.

He found himself with free time in 1952. A friend suggested he run for lieutenant governor, reminding him he had proclaimed in many Rotary speeches that businessmen have a responsibility in politics.

Hodges won the office, usually one of limited authority and little prestige. His brisk approach got attention, and his name cropped up frequently as a possible candidate for governor in the next election.

But Gov. William B. Umstead, suffered a heart attack two days after inauguration and died Nov. 7, 1954. As lieutenant governor, Luther Hodges, the political novice, succeeded to the state's top office.

Chief of the problems facing the state was the U.S. Supreme Court decision against racial segregation in public schools.

The moderate course in which Hodges guided the state gained national attention. As turmoil developed in many other Southern states, North Carolina proceeded calmly with limited integration which caused hardly a ripple of difficulty.

The governor stepped in the national spotlight as a would-be peacemaker when federal troops were sent to Little Rock, Ark., in the fall of 1957 to enforce a court order for school integration.

Hodges was chairman of a committee of Southern governors which tried unsuccessfully to bring together President Eisenhower and Gov. Orval Faubus of Arkansas on an agreement to withdraw the troops.

He has learned to take rebuffs and move ahead.

"I had a surging ambition to get out from under the conditions I saw around me as a kid," he said. "But I am not, and I never was, ashamed of them, and I hope I never forget my raising."

Luther Hodges was one of nine children, born on a tenant farm in Pittsylvania County, across the state line in Virginia. His parents soon moved to Leaksville, where eventually a number of the family, including Luther, went to work in the Marshall Field mill.

Hodge worked his way through college, selling Bibles door-to-door, doing odd jobs on campus, and working as a news butcher on a railroad.

ASC 'Sign-Up' Time For Morgan Farmers

Wallace T. Hembrough, manager of the Morgan County ASC office, announces "it's sign-up time" for the 1961 agricultural conservation program, in which the federal government shares the cost of carrying out specifically approved soil conservation practices.

The county committee has approved 22 separate practices for the year. To qualify for assistance an official request must be filled with the county office before it is started, it must be approved by the county committee and it must be completed within a specified time.

Seven practices will be given preference. They are terraces, diversions, small structures, farm ponds, contour intertilled crops, tile lines for waterways and erosion control structures.

Other practices on the 1961 docket are: sod waterways, tile outlets, contour strip cropping, pasture improvement, additional legumes on cropland, green manure, seedings lime on farmland, rock phosphate on farmland, tree planting, initial establishment of a stand of trees or shrubs on farmland to prevent wind or water erosion, forest improvement or protection, tile lines associated with new tile outlets, removal of brush from pasturelands and unvegetated channel for drainage.

As last year, the limestone and rock phosphate programs are divided into two parts: application before and after July 31. In all cases, a soil test must be filed before approval can be issued.

"If you have any question, please don't hesitate to stop at the county office and discuss the program," Hembrough says.

Eight Rambler Buyers Will Get Savings Bonds

Eight customers of Allied Motor Sales will receive U. S. Savings Bonds with a total maturity value of $25 each because they purchased new Ramblers during December, Ray Samples announced Saturday. Allied Motor Sales, 223 North Sandy street.

The bonds will be sent to them automatically by American Motors Corporation.

Under AM's Progress Sharing Program Rambler buyers receive bonds as national Rambler sales increase between Dec. 1 and March 31. For a 10 per cent monthly increase, buyers will receive $25 bonds and if the cumulative gain goes up to 50 per cent each buyer will receive $125 in bonds. Bonds will be awarded at the end of each month in which sales increase over a year ago. Should cumulative sales go up further between now and March 31, the December buyers will receive additional bonds, Mr. Samples said.

If the minimum increase is made in the four-month period American Motors will spend $2.8 million for bonds and if the maximum gain is made the expenditure would total $18.7 million.

He said customer reaction "is the greatest I've seen in my years in the automobile industry."

Mr. Samples said the program was started by George Romney, president of American Motors, to "give a further lift to rising Rambler sales volume by sharing nearly all of the economies of the gain with the customer."

Total Rambler sales in December climbed to 34,321, a 13.8 per cent gain over 1959. Sales of Allied Motor Sales were up 14 per cent in the month.

Leonard Wilson Tells The Story Of Fort Sumter

A tense period in American history, "Fort Sumter, Peace or War," was told by Leonard Wilson, assistant to the president, Illinois College, when the Jacksonville Civil War Roundtable met Friday evening at Tanner Library.

Wilson told of the nervous occupation of the partially-constructed fort in the Charleston, S. C., harbor by Major Robert Anderson and 68 men on Christmas Day, 1859, how they labored around the clock to get the place ready for defense and how they were virtually ignored by both the army and the government, which was bogged down by a change of administration.

The garrison was practically starved out, down to salt pork and two crackers per man per day, nothing else before the Confederacy fired the first shot early in the morning of April 12, 1860. Anderson was forced to haul down the flag the next day. The event jelled wavering loyalties, firmed convictions and launched the land into four years of civil strife, a war which brought more casualties than all subsequent U. S. wars combined.

President Jack Kurtz announced the February meeting will be at Tanner Library Friday, Feb. 3. All men interested in Civil War history are invited.

Ask More State Aid For Soil Districts

Possible Illinois assembly action to increase state assitance to soil conservation districts was discussed here Friday afternoon when representatives of the Morgan and Scott county boards met at the local office with State Representatives Harris Rowe of Jacksonville and H. B. Ihnen of Quincy, Republicans, Carl Wittmond, Democrat, of Brussels, was unable to attend the conference.

Presiding at the meeting were R. G. Leavell, president of the Morgan board, and Harold Fearneyhough, president of the Scott board, who is also the west central Illinois representative on the executive board, Illinois Association of Soil Conservation Districts.

Want Office Help

This group is sponsoring similar meetings all over the state in an effort to secure additional state funds to secure clerical help which would permit SCS technicians to spend more of their time in the field.

Leavell and Fearneyhough reviewed the work of the district. They pointed out that Illinois now provides only $150 per year per district. The federal government provides about $16,000 in each county for technical assistance, and ASC-approved federal payments to farmers and landowners was about $100,000 in Morgan County last year, about $50,000 in Scott County.

County assistance last year amounted to $300 in Morgan, none in Scott.

District directors receive no pay, no mileage.

More Work

The local directors pointed out that the backlog of requests for technical assistance grows each year, that there are twice as many requests now on file as there was one year ago.

The state association is sponsoring a proposal for the state to increase its share of the costs from $150 per year to $2,500 to $4,500, depending on the size, work and needs of each individual district. This money would be used primarily to secure part or full time clerical help for correspondence, reports, records and office supervision while the SCS employes are in the field.

Others present at the conference were three directors, Floyd Goodpasture of Concord, Earl Meyers of Literberry and R. E. Stocker of Murrayville; H. W. Turner, area conservationist, Hillsboro, and Joe Graham, Morgan-Scott conservationist.

The Washington Monument which has a weight of 81,120 tons, has foundations which weigh 36,912 tons.

Mrs. Bigler Is Speaker Before Teachers Group

The monthly dinner meeting for teachers in Alpha Delta Kappa was held at the Triple Flame on January 4. The table was centered with a Sugar Plum tree done in gold, flanked by snowmen candles and snowmen place cards. The sorority prayer by Chaplain Thelma Willard was used as grace before the meal.

Mrs. Frances Moy presented the guest speaker, Mrs. Clarence Bigler, who spoke on The Welfare of Indian Education in U.S. The elementary government schools and the government high schools are really boarding schools so many Indians object to having young children away from home and do not send them. The solution to the problem seems to be, that there should be enough schools so these children will not have to be away nine months.

The high school that Mrs. Bigler attended, called Chilocco, taught the Indian very little for college entrant, which necessitated a great deal of outside work during her college years. The courses are very practical and when people go in for higher education they usually become teachers, nurses, or ministers.

Omicron chapter president, Miss Margaret Fitzpatrick presided at the business meeting, which opened with the sorority pledge and was followed by a group sing. Chapter songs were led by Mildred Kane Alvahlee McCarthy gave a report on the Alpha Delta Kappa Tea held last week at the I.E.A. meeting in Chicago, with the chapter in Eugin as hostesses. Both the chapter president and Mrs. McCarthy were in attendance.

Letters asking for donations to civic causes were to be given consideration but tabled since the chapter has previously voted to concentrate on gifts for crippled children of this community.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mildred Kane since the scheduled hostess Ruth Ranson is in the hospital at present.

TOO MANY RABBITS

Thomas Austin imported two dozen rabbits to his estate near Melbourne, Australia, for hunting purposes in 1859. So profusely did they multiply that he trapped and shot nearly 20,000 during the next six years, yet an estimated 10,000 survived and, by 1866, their descendants were ravaging crops on a billion acres of land.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — The supply of butcher hogs for the week was only slightly under offerings a week ago but the market was steady to 25 cents lower.

Shipper demand included weight up to 260 lbs for which the supply was adequate. However, some weakness appeared to stem from lower prices in the Chicago dressed meat trade where pork loins declined as much as $1.50 a hundredweight.

A drop of about 25 per cent in the cattle supply had a firming effect in the market for slaughter steers which were bid up as much as $2 a hundredweight on good to prime grades.

At the close, prime grade steers sold at $29.50, a new high since July. Heifers also reached a six-months' top of $28.

Demand apparently was curtailed by a strike of meat handlers in New York.

In the sheep trade, slaughter lambs were weak to 50 cents lower and also were affected, buyers said, the New York strike. However, the supply was considerably larger than a week ago.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market made its 1961 debut by posting a fairly good weekly gain, its second straight.

The feature of the week was a huge rally on Wednesday which erased a sizeable loss taken on Tuesday, the first trading day of the new year. The week was shortened to four days because of the Monday holiday.

Steels were the heroes of the week, rising even against the general downtrend on Tuesday. They advanced every session thereafter until they backtracked a bit on profit taking Friday.

There were those who claimed that the decline on Tuesday and the advance on Wednesday were prompted by the same factors, the crisis in Laos and the trouble with Cuba. It did not make sense to others that the market should rise and fall for the same reasons, world tensions or the possibility of war.

The Tuesday setback was ascribed by some veteran observers chiefly to profit taking among a number of issues which had benefitted from the yearend rally. The steels, they said, were badly depressed and looked like prime candidates for big gains if and when the predicted upturn in the economy gets under way later this year. Early on Wednesday, while the market was still churning irregularly, the steels plodded ahead. The mood began to catch and other groups, one by one, joined in the advance. By the end of the day the Associated Press average had scored its biggest rise since Sept. 24, 1959 and the Dow Jones industrial average its biggest since Nov. 15, 1957.

The AP 60-stock average t his week rose 2.60 to 223.50.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 5.75 to 621.64.

Volume for the holiday-shortened week totaled 14,362,674 compared with 16,537,084 for the previous week, likewise shortened by a Monday holiday.

Of 1,427 issues traded this week, 942 advanced and 369 declined. New highs for 1960-'61 totaled 85 and new lows 12.

The most active issue this week on the American Stock Exchange was McCulloch Oil, up ¼ at 2⅞ on 69,800 shares.

The bond markets observed the start of the new year this week with an erratic performance.

Corporate prices advanced all along the line while U.S. government bonds retreated after four weeks of improvement. Most of the changes for the holiday week were relatively small.

Volume fell to $21.34 million par value on the New York Stock Exchange from $26.73 million last week and the daily average was off to $5.34 million from $6.68 million. Tuesday the total fell below $5 million for the first time since mid December.

SIRENS SIGNAL END OF 13-WEEK STRIKE

FAIRFIELD, Ill. (AP) —Sirens sounded Saturday afternoon in Fairfield, a town of 6,200, signalling the end of a crippling 13-week strike at Airtex Products Inc., the town's biggest industry.

Members of the United Automobile Workers Local 543 voted 441-62 today to return to their jobs Monday under a new 3-year contract. The strike had idled about 850 workers, including some 650 members of the union, and had dealt Fairfield a crippling economic blow.

The firm produces automobile fuel and water pumps and other automobile replacement parts.

The contract provides for no wage increase this year, 6 cents an hour next Jan. 1 and an additional 6 cents an hour Jan. 1, 1963, plus an employe pension plan and a strengthened seniority clause. The present wage scale ranges from $1.82 to $2.88 an hour.

Many are wondering what will happen to this year's sugar crop of 5 to 6 million tons. This is the traditional time for maximum harvesting work. But thousands of field workers and mill hands are out parading, waiting for an invasion that has not come.

The semiofficial newspaper Revolucion admitted this problem Saturday. The newspaper published a full-page article saying that wives, sisters and children are taking up the workers' tasks—cutting and delivering cane to the mills while their men serve in Castro's militia.

"Substitution of the sons, wives and sisters of militiamen has been ideal," Revolucion said. "In the efficiency of their (the family's) work no differences can be noted to all."

Many experts doubt, however, that women and children can effectively make up in the harvest for their missing men. The nation's future depends on a fast and efficient sugar harvest.

Maj. Ernesto Guevara, Cuba's economic chief, told a television audience Friday night that Cuba already has traded its 1961 sugar crop to the Communist bloc in exchange for unspecified political considerations.

Through Guevara, Castro made an apparent new bid for reconciliation once President-elect John F. Kennedy occupies the White House.

Guevara hinted that Cuba is ready anytime for a man-to-man talk with the new Washington administration. He said Castro will sell three million tons of sugar annually "at realistic prices" and buy an equally valued quantity of American goods, if the United States is willing.

Cuba has been pinched by shortages in almost every line, from salt to oil refinery equipment, and is desperately seeking supplies throughout the world. But the United States is still the most convenient source.

Communications between Cuba and the United States — airlines, cables and mail—are normal. Officials in both countries said they saw no reason why the diplomatic break would change them.

Thousands of Cubans who sought to leave have been frightened by a suspension in issuing new exit permits. Travel agencies say they believe Cuba suspended new issues until announcement of new regulations governing them.

Until then, the government has declared that all exit permits already issued will be honored. All Americans have been allowed to leave with or without exit permits.

REPORT SUPPORTS KENNEDY PROPOSAL

McCloskey told newsmen he is concerned with wiping out the party's $3 million deficit. He expressed hope $1 million would be raised at a gala entertainment here the night before Kennedy's inauguration and said he would ask each state chairman to t e responsibility for raising a proportionate share of the balance.

The report from Millikan on establishment of a peace corps of talented young men and women to assist in the development of newly emerging nations was one of a series Kennedy has been receiving on a variety of subjects.

Millikan said that in his report, to be made public Tuesday, he suggested such a corps be set up initially on a test basis with the enrollment of a few hundred young men and women.

He told newsmen it would be unwise and unnecessary to provide that service if the corps would exempt young men of draft age from military duty.

Kennedy, in proposing the peace corps in a San Francisco campaign speech, said three years of service in it could be an alternative to the peacetime draft.

Kennedy made public the report of another task force recommending an entirely new subsidy program to provide housing for low income families and other steps intended to spur home building and urban improvements.

CARPENTIER, POWELL END FEUD, KERNER TO BE INAUGURATED

The purpose of the GOP recess on opening day was to give the Republicans time to corral the missing representatives or "embarrass them before the people for what they are," Carpentier said.

Republicans contend the absent representatives were pressured by Democrats to stay away from the opening day session.

As the speakership battle appeared on the verge of settlement, thousands of visitors from all parts of the state started arriving in Springfield for inauguration day ceremonies and festivities.

Hotels and motels were sold out for the weekend.

The state armory, scene of the midday inauguration, already is decked with flowers, flags and bunting.

For the inaugural ball, also to be held in the armory, 15,000 invitations have gone out. Two bands will play in the armory and a third will play for dancing in the Statehouse rotunda.

Kerner and his wife, Helena, plan to entertain about 120 guests at a buffet luncheon in the mansion Monday. A formal dinner for about 24 close friends and officials will be held Monday evening.

Among the guests invited for the dinner are U.S. Sen. Paul Douglas, former Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, former Gov. and Mrs. John Stelle and Mayor and Mrs. Richard J. Daley of Chicago.

On Monday morning, the Kerners will be driven to the mansion where they will be joined by outgoing Gov. and Mrs. William G. Stratton. Other elected and retiring state officials also will take part in the auto caravan to the armory.

Three other Democrats and one Republican are slated to take their oaths with Kerner.

They are Samuel H. Shapiro of Kankakee, lieutenant governor-elect; Michael J. Howlett of Chicago, auditor-elect; William G. Clark, attorney general-elect, and Carpentier, the lone Republican, who will be serving his third consecutive term as secretary of state.

FAN BREEZES

BY STAN SPOTTS

Journal Courier Sports Editor

There were mixed reactions from the fans Friday night at the JHS-Canton contest. Everyone I encountered voiced an opinion concerning Jacksonville's flashy new uniforms and the improved style of play of the Crimsons in the last couple of weeks. The uniforms are white with matching stripes consisting of red, white and navy blue on the sides of the pants and jerseys. The white knee-length hose have circular stripes with the same color scheme. The numbers of the players are navy blue.

—O—

Don Painter, salesman for Bailey and Himes sporting goods, who sold the outfits to the Crimsons, took plenty of good-natured ribbing from onlookers. Yours truly asked Don, "If one of Abe Saperstein's orders for the Globetrotters got mixed up and was sent to the Crimsons by mistake?" Painter, who is just as proud of the outfits as the Crimsons are, chuckled and replied, "Could be." Prior to game time in the JHS dressing room a player remarked all we lack is the record of "Sweet Georgia Brown" which is the theme song of the Trotters while they are in the process of warmup drills. One lady commented, "I was so surprised when they (the team) came onto the floor that I didn' know who they were at first." A gentleman wondered, "Who in the world picked out the color scheme." Another lady, evidently interested in fashions, said, "I think they are simply stunning."

—O—

Jim Coultas of Elliott Bank probably came up with the best answer when asked what he thought of the new togs. Jim replied, "Oh, they were okay but I was more interested in the improved play of those wearing them." These next few facts are the concensus of the fans. The Chapman quintet is definitely improving but they are their own worst enemy when it comes to losing as they beat themselves. With their deliberate style of play they forced Canton to play their game in the first quarter but when they tried 'racehorse tactics' in the second and final quarters they met their waterloo. It seems the Crimsons become erratic when they try to run and as a result their passing is lousy especially off a fast break. Jacksonville is slowly coming into its own as a unit but it still has a long way to go to produce a winner. JHS lacks several things, namely rebounders and an outshooter.

—O—

Chip Baldwin, Ron Yates, Ken Norton, Bill Sims and Ron Tomhave played good ball in the first and third quarters for the Crimsons despite the fact they were a little hesitant in their offensive passing patterns. Their biggest weakness was telegraphing their passes to Canton as they would look directly toward a teammate and then try to pass to him. Once they overcome their fear that there is an opposing player trying to get the ball then maybe they'll use a little deception and out-guess the opponents' motives. One thing for sure the Crimsons had better forget the long pass on a fast break because they can't click on the run and shoot type offense. Maybe once or twice they'll get away with it in a game but more than not they'll keep throwing the round thing away. I think Ron Yates and Ron Tomhave did an exceptional job of rebounding and I was glad to see Yates' shooting touch coming back. Ernie Savage, former Journal Courier sports editor, said after observing Yates' first two buckets Friday, "Why, that's Art Yates out there shooting and he still dribbles the ball low." Wonder what father and son did over the Christmas holidays? Or maybe Chapman's long hours of practice are beginning to show up. Anyway, the Crimsons will be a definite threat in their own regional, which has the same returning teams from last year, the first week of March. That is—IF—they continue to improve.

—O—

Harvey Turner and Clyde McQueen of Springfield, the two officials for Friday's game, are appearing on the hardcourt this season for the 30th year as a combination and they claim this is their final campaign. McQueen didn't reveal his age but Turner said he was 54, Red Orr of Springfield is still active as an official at the tender age of 62.

—O—

Turner and McQueen had several questionable calls that went against the Crimsons and the fans felt the two refs are justified in making this their final season of whistle-tooting. Coach Bob Winstead of Routt has nothing against officials as he believes they save a lot of coaches' jobs. His theory is, "If the fans weren't on the officials they would be after the coaches and this would be fatal." Bob is probably thinking of his coaching friends as he's never had a losing season at Routt in four years of hardcourt strategy. Routt's clash with Tripoia this Friday will give PMSC Conference followers some idea as to the outcome of the annual PMSC tournament later this month. The Rockets nudged Triopia by two points in the championship last winter, 44-42. The Trojans would have clashed with Reutt last week in the Waverly tourney but Auburn prevented the meeting with a six-point victory over the Chapin, Concord, Arenzville quintet.

—O—

The top 25 PGA golfers drive Pontiacs and this little slogan includes Don Fairfield. Don recently came from 32nd to 24th via $1200 in a tourney and this put him in the select group of the Top 25 for 1960. Pontiac furnishes everything including insurance and tires but Don has to buy his own gas and oil. He doesn't have to use the car on the tour but he'll probably drive the '61 model and let the wife have the Lincoln unless the boys have other ideas. In PGA earnings for 1960 Don picked up $14,961.

—O—

JHS freshman coach Al Rosenberger reports the Jan. 9 date with Pittsfield in the Bowl has been changed to Monday, Jan. 23 at 6:30 p.m. The Crimson freshmen will stage their eighth annual Frosh Tournament Saturday, Jan. 21. Winchester, the defending champ, will meet JHS at 1:00 p.m. in the opener followed by the Rushville-Havana game at 2:30. The two losers meet Saturday night at 7:00 for third place and the winners clash in the championship at 8:30 p.m. There is no admission charge and no trophy presentations.

FRANCE GOES FROG STYLE

VIENNA (AP) — The French rose to the top by squatting low in downhill races and now Alpine skiing has a new term—frog style.

The new downhill style, getting its name from a squatting position similar to that of a frog, has been termed a must for the aces by Sepp Sulzberger, coach of the Austrian national ski team. He is so taken with the innovation, he has ordered a special training session for Austrian downhillers so they can become familiar with it.

Two Free Throws With 16 Seconds Remaining Dooms Mac Murray Five

WABASH, Ind. — Two free throws by Rusty Nichols with 16 seconds remaining broke a 62-62 deadlock and gave Wabash College's Little Giants a 64-62 verdict over MacMurray College Saturday night.

The loss was the Highlanders' second in as many nights and their fourth of the campaign to go with eight victories. The victory was number nine against four losses for Wabash and kept its three-year unbeaten string at home intact.

Coach Bill Wall's Clan took the lead with 6:50 remaining in the first half and held it for an eight-point advantage at intermission, 33-25.

The Highlanders led throughout most of the second half until Wabash caught up with 3:18 remaining to make it 58-58. The losers went out in front once more but the Little Giants picked up a free throw and two buckets and led by two, 62-60, with 1:43 left to play.

Wabash missed a chance to increase its spread via two misses at the charity line but Highlander guard Ron Price turned the misses into a bucket and another tie, 62-62, with 26 seconds left. Ten seconds later Nichols drew a foul from Jones and the Wabash forward quickly settled the outcome.

The winners hit at a .407 clip while MacMurray hit .387 from the field.

Roy Hahnfeld of MacMurray took game honors with 19 points.

PITTSFIELD — Kenny Wilson and Dennis Rineberg led a Quincy comeback in the final minutes of the fourth quarter for a 46-43 win over the Saukees Saturday night.

Pittsfield, now 6-5 for the season, held a nine point advantage in the second quarter and was out in front by four in the final canto but the Saukees felt the pressure of a full court press and committed numerous bad passes and the Blue Devils turned the miscues into buckets for their 10th win in 12 starts.

Toby Smith's Saukees led by five after three quarters, 35-30, but an eight-point fourth quarter spelled defeat.

GRIGGSVILLE — Pleasant Hill started very fast with 42 points in the first half but mustered only 14 in the second half to drop a Pike County Conference contest to the Tornadoes Saturday night, 61-56.

Coach Charles Pritchett's winners hit only six field goals the final two quarters but made 13 of 16 free throws during this 16 minutes while committing only three fouls from a man to man defense. Pleasant Hill never received the one and one bonus in the second half which is a mighty unusual situation in the game as it is now played.

Two Colleges And Two Platoon Football Chief Conversational Subjects As NCAA Groups Gather

By HUGH FULLERTON
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Two colleges and two-platoon football provided the chief conversational gambits Saturday as the vanguard of more than 2,000 college coaches, athletic directors and other leaders gathered for their annual week-long session of business and talk.

Conversation was the day's biggest activity as only a couple of committee meetings and coaching clinics were on the schedule.

The colleges mentioned most frequently were Virginia, which is seeking a football coach to end its near-record 28-game losing streak, and North Carolina, which hopes to end an NCAA investigation of its basketball recruiting without incurring any penalties.

Moves toward a return of platoon football, tossed out by the rules makers eight years ago, was one of the favorite subjects of hotel lobby debate as the rules committee of the American Football Coaches Association met to decide what changes, if any, to recommend to the national rules body.

There has been some agitation, especially from the smaller schools, for further liberalization of the present "wild card" substitution rule.

Virginia is one of the few major colleges which has an opening for a head football coach. The talk here is that veteran George (Lefty) James, ousted by Cornell at the end of the 1960 season, holds the No. 1 place on the list of prospects but is undecided whether to take the job.

North Carolina's plight came to light when it had been learned that Basketball Coach Frank McGuire and Athletic Director Chuck Erickson were scheduled for another meeting with the NCAA council Sunday or Monday. They have come before the council previously during the past year.

The matter reportedly concerns recruiting of basketball players. Since moving from Brooklyn to North Carolina, McGuire has had spectacular success, largely with players from the North.

Walker Leads Bradley Victory With 46 Points

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)— Chet Walker, Bradley's candidate for All-America honors, poured in 46 points Saturday night, leading the Braves to a 76-66 victory over Tulsa in a Missouri Valley Conference basketball game.

Walker, who earlier this season scored 50 points, connected on 16 of 25 field goals and 14 of 18 free throws. In addition, he grabbed off 17 rebounds.

The victory was the 18th straight for the second ranked Braves who are 12-0 for the season and 4-0 in conference competition.

With Walker scoring 30 of his points in the first half, Bradley led at intermission, 50-32, and Coach Chuck Orsborne substituted freely but left Walker in all the way.

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Deer hunter Ray Butler tramped the mountains all day without firing a shot. Back at camp, he found his wife had shot and killed a deer which wandered too near their tent.

Illinois Deaf, Idle For A Month, Loses To West Pike, 76-39

KINDERHOOK — The Illinois School for the Deaf returned from their usual long Christmas vacation and were dealt a defeat at the hands of the West Pike quintet, 76-39. Coach Jim Bonds' Tigers have one of the longest layoffs in area basketball and showed the effects in the nonconference contest. West Pike, on the other hand, was never in a moment's trouble as they moved off to a 22-6 first period lead and outscored, or matched, the Tigers in every quarter.

Moore and Hastings led the winners scoring with 22 and 16 points respectively, while Earl Claussen topped ISD with 11 markers. West Pike also won the JV game 55-29.

Belleair Senior Title To Henry

BELLEAIR, Fla. (AP) — Richard A. Henry, a busy executive from Madison, N.J., who can find time for golf only on weekends, stroked his way to a 2 and 1 victory over Dick Owen of Dunedin Saturday and won the Belleair Invitational Senior Golf Championship.

Henry, 58, a partner in a New York accounting firm, won seven, lost five and halved five holes to defeat Owen, the 1959 tournament champion.

In the championship flight consolation, J. H. Wallace of St. Petersburg whipped A. A. Villegas of New Orleans 4 and 3.

The tournament was played over Belleview Biltmore course near Clearwater.

Wisconsin Picks Up Big 10 Win Over MSU, 74-71

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — A pair of Big Ten teams that figure to go nowhere in the conference basketball race made a good fight out of it Saturday night with Wisconsin defeating Michigan State, 74-71.

Wisconsin had a 47-40 lead at the half but had to fight off a Spartan effort to close it up in the final moments.

The closest Michigan State came was a one-point deficit with three seconds to go.

Michigan State had a 3-5 won and lost record in non-conference games going into the contest. Wisconsin's record was 3-6. Both were heavy losers in holiday tournaments. Neither is considered a serious threat for the Big Ten's first division.

Dick Dutrisac was high scorer for the winners with 15 points. High for Michigan State was Dick Hall with 18 points.

One-Sided Setback Is Illinois' Seventh And Fifth Consecutive

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State thundered past Illinois 91-65 Saturday night to open defense of its Big Ten basketball title in true championship style.

With the regulars playing little more than three-fourths of the game, the top-ranked Buckeyes easily won their 10th straight contest this season, 15th in a row over two years and 16 straight in St. John Arena.

Scoring leader for the Buckeyes was Jerry Lucas with 35 points in less than 30 minutes of action. Big Luke was removed before the rest of the regulars as he fell heavily on the floor, slightly injuring his right knee.

Captain Larry Siegfried scored 18 points.

Illinois' 6-foot-8 sophomore, Bill Burwell, was completely outplayed by Lucas and scored most of his 15 points, high for the Illini, after Big Luke went to the bench.

Basilio Claims Unanimous Win From Ortega

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Carmen Basilio overcame a sluggish start and won an unanimous 10-round decision over Gaspar Ortega at Madison Square Garden Saturday night with a two-fisted attack reminiscent of the form that once earned him the welterweight and middleweight boxing titles.

The 33-year-old battler from Canastota, N.Y., in a comeback attempt after his knockout defeat by NBA Champion Gene Fullmer last June, showed little effects of his long layoff as he closed with a rush. His younger and lighter foe from Mexico was hanging on at the final bell.

The referee and Judge Leo Birnbaum voted six rounds for Basilio and four for Ortega, who spotted his opponent 10 pounds. The other judge, Joe Eppy, had it 5-4-1, the same as the AP card, in favor of Basilio.

Ortega weighed 149½ to Basilio's 159 ½.Carmen came in four pounds over his contracted weight of 155 and was suspended by the New York State Athletic Commission for this infraction.

The commission said it will announce the duration of the suspension at its next meeting, Friday, Jan. 14.

The suspension is effective Sunday.

There were no knockdowns although several times the 25-year-old Ortega was staggered by solid right hands.

Ortega, tough as nails, fought back furiously each time he was hurt and, on several occasions, hurt his older foe with furious counter-pouching.

Long-Hitting Paul Harney Grabs Midway Lead At LA

By BOB MYERS
Associated Press Sports Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Long-hitting Paul Harney took the lead at the midway mark of the $45,000 Los Angeles Open Saturday with his second straight 3-under-par 68 as the big name of the tournament, Arnold Palmer, fell out.

Palmer, the National Open and Masters champion of 1960, failed to qualify for the final two rounds as the ranks were cut to the low 90s and ties.

Saturday the 31-year-old "golfer of the year" took a 72 for a total of 149.

That horrendous 12 strokes on the final hole for a 77 Friday wrecked Palmer's chances in this, his hard-luck tournament.

Harney, former Eastern collegiate champion from Worcester, Mass., posted a 36-hole score of 136 to take a precarious one-stroke lead.

Ted Kroll, the first-round leader from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., with a 66, fell back with a 72 for 138.

Knotted in the runner-up spot at 137 were Ken Venturi of Palo Alto, Calif., 69-68; Bob Goalby, Crystal River, Fla., 67-70, and Los Angeles' Eric Monti, 67-70.

Scores of 148 or better qualified for the third round.

This was the first time Palmer had failed to survive the cut since the Indianapolis "500" last year, and that was at the 54-hole mark.

At 138 tied with Kroll after Saturday's round over the 7,000-yard, par 36-35—71 Rancho municipal golf course, were ex-national PGA Champion Lionel Hebert, 68-70; Bill Collins, Crystal River, Fla., 67-71, and Tommy Jacobs of Palm Springs, Calif., 69-69.

The 140 group included Billy Casper Jr., Bob Rosburg, Gardner Dickinson, England's Eric Brown and 23-year-old Tommy Aaron of Gainesville, Ga., whose 66 was the low round of the day.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Leading golf scorers after the second round of the $45,000 Los Angeles Open Saturday included:

Lane Of Lions Blocks Deciding Point After TD

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Defensive halfback Dick Lane crashed through to block Sam Baker's extra point kick Saturday and saved a 17-16 victory for the underdog Detroit Lions over the Cleveland Browns in the National Football League's first Playoff Bowl game.

Trailing by seven points, Cleveland made a sensational strike for a tie on Milt Plum's 89-yard touchdown pass to Bob Mitchell.

The win, fifth straight for the Lions, gave them third place in the NFL, the first time such a consolation prize had been awarded. Detroit finished second in the Western Division and Cleveland was runner-up in the East.

As it turned out, Detroit might have scored again. A pass interception by Gary Lowe, his third of the game, gave the Lions possession at the Cleveland 12. Fut Detroit deliberately let the clock run out.

A shirtsleeved crowd of 34,981 saw the massive Detroit team continue its domination of Cleveland. The Lions now have beaten the Browns in eight games out of nine.

Trailing 7-0 at the half, Detroit went ahead 10-7 in the third on a five-yard touchdown run by Nick Pietrosante and a field goal and conversion by Jim Martin. The Browns tied it at 10-10 before Ken Webb scored the decisive touchdown on a one-yard dive in the last quarter.

Both Cleveland touchdowns were scored on passes by Plum, the first going nine yards to Rich Kreitling. Baker hit a 27-yard field goal.

★ GRAYSON'S SCOREBOARD ★

By HARRY GRAYSON

Sports Editor

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Canadian clubs excel in hockey because it is the national game in the Dominion, where kids start to skate and pass the puck as soon as they can walk.

Bernard Geoffrion was one of those kids on Montreal rinks. Young Geoffrion had a tremendous shot as a teen-ager, when he couldn't control it nearly as well as he does now as the National Hockey League's greatest scorer. More often than not the puck would hit the backboard or something else to create loud noise. It was from the rattle of his hard shot that Bernie Geoffrion acquired the nickname, Boom Boom.

Geoffrion, 30 next month, has succeeded his retired idol, Maurice (The Rocket) Richard, as professional hockey's top scorer—for the Montreal Canadiens, of course. There is certain resemblance in build and style between the swarthy, compactly constructed—five-nine and 180 pounds—Geoffrion and Richard. Thick necks and extraordinarily strong and fiery.

* * *

Dick Irvin, the late coach under whom Geoffrion broke in with the Canadiens fresh out of the Juniors 10 years ago, once told us that Boom Boom had the correct psychological pitch from the outset.

"Boom Boom loosens up the goalie with his first shot," pointed out Irvin. "He whistles the puck at or by his head. It hits the glass behind the net with a resounding smack. This has the same effect as a relief pitcher loosening up a hitter by putting everything he has on the first pitch and throwing it behind the batter's head. The hitter is less likely to take a toe-hold."

Geoffrion is the fifth highest scorer in history. The man he passed this season was his late father-in-law, the immortal Howie Morenz, the Strasford Streak who electrified spectators as the Canadiens' incomparable center from 1923-24 through '36-37.

* * *

Geoffrion's contract calls for a $1,000 bonus when he scored his 20th goal this season. That's the equivalent of batting .300 in baseball. The latest figures show that Geoffrion has 24. This means Boom Boom not only reached the $1,000 plateau, but for each goal beyond 20 he gets a $100 bonus, and there is still more than half of the season to go. He should come close to 50 goals, meaning $4,000 extra for scoring.

Beyond that, the Habitants have won the Stanley Cup, the World Series of the glistening game, five straight years. If they make it six in a row, each athlete collects $4,000 extra. If Geoffrion shows the wheel the way in scoring, which he did a half dozen years ago and is doing now, he collects another $1,000 from the league.

If Geoffrion is chosen All-Star at right wing, which practically is a lead-pipe cinch, he picks up another $1,000. In short, he's in line for $10,000 in premiums, not bad for a guy being paid $22,000 a year regardless of the results.

Boom Boom Geoffrion lives to score, is as hungry for goals as Mickey Mantle is for home runs. That is why he is one of the more exciting players of the fastest game.

When he unloads that shot, the spectators know something is going to happen.

College Baseball Coaches Stress Summer Program

PITTSBURGH (AP) — College coaches think they may have the answer to organized baseball's minor league problem — summer varsity competition.

Lee Eilbracht, Illinois baseball coach who both played and managed in the minors, said Saturday, "there are empty minor league parks all over the country. Many communities are without good hard ball competition. The colleges can fill that void."

"Pro baseball is dead in New England," said Henry Butova of American International College in Springfield, Mass. "I find my boys berths on industrial teams in the summer so they can get experience. Three-quarters of a million people are without organized baseball in the Springfield area."

Wally Rabb, coach of North Carolina's Atlantic Coast Conference champions, sees summer baseball as a coming thing in the ACC as soon as the schools go on a trimester (year-around) academic undergraduate system, a growing trend stemming from crowded campuses.

"Summer baseball could be the great equalizer in college competition," said Frank Sancet, whose University of Arizona teams are perennial national powers. Arizona, because of its weather conditions, plays more than 50 games a season and has the opportunity to develop standout major league prospects.

These men are members of the American Association of College Baseball Coaches meeting here in advance of the annual convention of the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

World Series Of Bowling Opens Play Thursday

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—The world series of bowling opens a 10-day run Thursday with leading bowlers from 42 states competing for $68,150 in prize money.

The 240 men and 96 women, selected from nearly 12,000 bowlers in local and state eliminations, will be competing in the All-Star Bowling Tournament for the first time on the West Coast. The event is sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors Association of America.

Defending Champion Harry Smith and four-time titlist Don Carter will be shooting for a 10,000 first-place prize. They are members of rival St. Louis teams.

Leading contenders for the $5,000 top woman's prize are Sylvia Wene and Marion Ladewig. Miss Wene, of Philadelphia, won her second All-Star crown last year with the first 300 game ever rolled in the women's division. Mrs. Ladewig, seven-time winner from Grand Rapids, Mich., lost the title to Miss Wene by less than one point

Pair Of Top Gymnasts Vie For Berths

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) — Ten of the nation's top gymnasts gather on the Pennsylvania State University campus next Thursday for tryouts leading to international competition with the Russian Olympic team.

Tom Maloney, veteran West Point coach who directed United States gymnasts at the 1960 Olympics, said he would put together the six-man team on the basis of the tryouts.

The meeting Saturday between the American and Soviet teams will be the only competitive match scheduled for the Russian tour. Exhibitions are included for New York, Chicago, West Chester, Pa., and elsewhere.

Members of the 1960 Olympic team expected to report for the tryouts include Jack Beckner of Los Angeles; Abie Grossfeld of New York, former West Point star Gar O'Quinn; undergraduate Fred Olofsky of Southern Illinois, and Don Tonry of New York.

Minoso Expects No Hitch In Returning To Sox

CHICAGO (AP) —Cuban baseball star Minnie Minoso of the Chicago White Sox expects no hitch in returning to the United States, he told Chicago's American today by phone from Havana.

Minoso said he plans to be in Chicago Jan. 15 to be honored as Chicago's Player of the Year at the annual baseball writers' banquet. He batted .311 last season and topped the American League in base hits with 184.

"I don't think Castro will prevent any Cuban players from going to the United States to play next season," Minoso told the newspaper. "As far as I know, all we need is a visa from the United States.

"Naturally, I can't really guarantee that we will be able to go. It all depends on what happens between now and March."

Dick Thornton Being Pressured By Winnipeg

CHICAGO (AP) — Northwestern quarterback Dick Thornton is being pressured by the Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Canadian Big Four League to quit school and join them next fall, Ara Parseghian, football coach of the Big Ten school, said Saturday.

"I have not heard from Winnipeg but Dick has," he said. "They have made him a very attractive concrete offer.

"I have heard, however, from the St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League and the Dallas Texans of the American Football League. They are trying to encourage Dick to remain in school and take advantage of his final year of elibility and then decide which of them he will play with.

"No such encouragement has been given by Winnipeg. They are putting pressure on him to play in Canada next fall. This naturally puts the heat on the Cardinals and Texans to make an offer, too.

"I really don't know what Dick is going to do. He told me he may decide in another week."

Thornton is in the 1961 graduating class. He has one year of eligibility remaining. It was restored by the Big Ten when Thornton broke an ankle on the first play of Northwestern's first conference game against Iowa in 1959, sidelining him for the season.

Since Thornton's class graduates this year, he was eligible for the pro football drafts.

SENATOR CALLS ON FRICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., has asked Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick to end a controversy over American Association franchises which Hartke said threatens the existence of the Indianapolis team.

Hartke asked Frick to "rectify the apparent wrong" in the dispute over indemnity payments from the new major league owners in Minneapolis-St. Paul and Houston, American Association cities being taken over by the majors.

BASILIO DRAWS SUSPENSION

NEW YORK (AP) — Carmen Basilio, former world welter and middleweight boxing champion, was suspended for 30 days, effective Sunday, when he weighed in at 159½ pounds Saturday for his nationally televised fight in Madison Square Garden Saturday night.

When he signed the contract to meet Gaspar Ortega of Mexico, the former champion agreed to weigh no more than 155 pounds. When the scales showed 159½, his suspension was automatic. Ortega weighed 149½.

Snead Uncorks Long 42 Yarder To Brown To Decide Close Finish

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Rifleman Norman Snead of Wake Forest passed for four touchdowns in directing the South All-Stars to a 33-26 victory over the North in the 12th annual Senior Bowl game Saturday.

Snead's final touchdown strike, a 42-yarder to back Fred Brown of Georgia, came with seven seconds of play remaining and provided the margin of victory in the wildest of all Senior Bowl games.

The 6-foot-4, 208-pound Snead edged Stanford's Dick Norman in a stirring aerial duel that saw the South pick up 328 yards passing to 311 for the Northerners. Norman, who rallied his club time after time, was voted the game's outstanding player.

Norman had pulled the North into a 26-26 tie with three minutes to go on a 29-yard touchdown pass to end Fred Arbanas of Michigan State. But an attempted conversion by Skip Face, also of Stanford, was blocked by defensive back Bobby Lauder of Auburn.

This set the stage for the fabulous finish in the final seconds Snead and the great Bobby Crespino of Mississippi, who took in two long touchdown passes from Snead, tied for the South's most outstanding back. One of the scoring plays by the two covered 70 yards, the other 47.

Guard Mike Zeno of VPI was chosen outstanding lineman for the South, and another guard, Joe Dean of Ohio University, was picked as the North's top lineman.

Hoosiers Survive Michigan Rally For 81-70 Win

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Indiana survived a last-ditch offensive rush by Michigan for an 81-70 victory in the Big Ten basketball opener for both teams Saturday.

After trailing 40-26 at halftime and 74-51 with six minutes left, the underdog Wolverines suddenly found the range.

They coupled sudden rebounding strength with a hot streak of shooting to outscore the Hoosiers 17-6 the rest of the way.

Capt. John Tidwell paced the Michigan attack with 21 points but lost overall scoring honors to Indiana's towering Walt Bellamy who had 23.

Indiana, rebounding from two losses in a West Coast holiday tournament, registered its seventh victory in 10 games. The loss was Michigan's seventh in 10 games.

Iowa Smothers Minnesota, 71-46

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Iowa streaked to its ninth basketball victory this season, and its first in Big Ten competition by outshooting Minnesota 71-46 in a regionally televised conference game Saturday.

The Hawkeyes appeared to be seeking revenge for the trouble the Gophers caused them in two defeats last year and blazed away to a 40-16 halftime lead. With the triumph stashed away early in the second half Iowa Coach Sharm Scheuerman started using all of his reserves.

The closest Minnesota came after falling behind in the early minutes was a 23-point spread at 54-31 in the final period.

The Hawks' flashy guard Ron Zagar led the Iowa scoring with 14 points but had big help from center Frank Allen and Matt Szykowny. They had 12 points each.

Top men for Minnesota were Dick Erickson with 9 points and Paul Lehman with 7.

Fullmer Scrap With Robinson Set For Feb.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The rematch between NBA World Middleweight Champion Gene Fullmer and ex-champ Sugar Ray Robinson was officially set Saturday for Feb. 25 at the desert gambling resort.

The announcement was made at a news conference by Norman Rothchild, Syracuse, N.Y., promoter, Fullmer's manager, Merv Jenson, and the two local promoters, Jack Doyle and Mel Greb.

The rematch will be a regularly televised Saturday night fight. It will originate from the convention center, a dice roll or two from the gambling strip.

Rothchild had reached a written agreement for the fight last Thursday with Robinson in New York.

Under terms of the agreement announced Saturday, Fullmer gets 40 per cent of the gate and $60,000 of the $150,000 from the television sponsor, a razor blade company. Robinson gets 25 per cent of the gate and $50,000 of the TV money.

Milton Hocking Will Head Morgan County Heart Fund

Milton Hocking will be chairman of the Morgan County Heart Fund next February, Mrs. Lucille Lair, chairman of the local Heart Association announced today.

MILTON HOCKING

Mr. Hocking is credit manager at J. Capps and Sons, Ltd., in Jacksonville.

The fund raising drive will reach its high point on Heart Sunday, Feb. 26, when scores of volunteers in all of the community's residential districts will call on their neighbors for contributions.

In accepting the appointment, the new campaign chairman pointed out that local Heart Fund contributions make possible the support of cardiovascular research in Illinois, and aid scientists in clinics and university laboratories throughout the nation.

Research, he said, has top priority in the Heart Association's program, and, in the past 12 years has been responsible for great progress in saving hearts through new methods of diagnosis, treatment and prevention. Additionally, he said, Heart Fund Dollars support broad programs of public and professional education and community service "which brings the benefits of research back to all of us."

Although great scientific advances have given Americans new hope that further controls and possible prevention of some heart and blood vessel diseases will be achieved within the next decade, deaths from cardiovascular disorders each year still exceed the total number of deaths from all other causes combined, he pointed out.

"The heart and blood vessel diseases are still the nation's Number 1 health enemy," Mr. Hocking stated. "I believe that, if we can firmly establish this fact in the minds of the residents of our community, they will recognize the importance of putting the Heart Fund at the top of their gift lists for health."

"I am proud and happy to accept the chairmanship of the 1961 Heart Fund drive in an effort to accomplish this objective," he concluded.

Castro Asked For It

In breaking off diplomatic relations with Cuba, we have taken an action which most Americans will regard as reasonable in the light of Fidel Castro's persistent provocations.

There is no doubt that we have also served Castro's own twisted political purposes.

As President Eisenhower has properly pointed out, there is a limit to the harassment one nation can endure at the hands of another. Though we cannot take punitive steps against tiny Cuba, we do not have to pretend to be on friendly terms with a government which has made hating America its stated policy.

There is no need to catalogue again the many Castro provocations. The final straw, of course, was his order to reduce our Cuban embassy staff from near 100 to 11—the exact number in Cuba's American embassy. Our obvious conclusion was that this would make our Havana embassy virtually inoperative.

From Castro's viewpoint, the gains in this move was clear. Much of the U.S. staff in Cuba was engaged constantly in processing visas for Cubans eager to escape to America from the wonders of the Castro regime.

The backlog of Cubans seeking U.S. entry is said to be at least 50,000 right now. They, plus the thousands already landed in Florida, constitute an intense embarrassment to Castro. For they advertise in loud tones that his revolution is not universally accepted as the blessing of the century.

Besides this, Castro undoubtedly found a kind of warped satisfaction in the mere act of our breaking off. In his petty dictator's world, even such a negative act can be hailed as a triumph, for he will offer it as proof his "hate America" campaign is justified.

In actual fact it is not justified. We may indeed have had our shortcomings in our relations with the Cuban people. But a strong, basic friendship existed, and as far as we are concerned, still does. Thus the severing of diplomatic ties must be taken with deep regret.

Whatever Castro's quick advantage in his break, his people are the long-range losers for, all aside from the now frustrated would-be refugees, they stood to gain much from a developing friendship with an America more alert today than before to the needs and problems of its Latin-American neighbors to the South.

We cannot deal with Castro. We must hope that the shock of this break hastens the day when the Cuban people decide they cannot do so either.

The Big Job For Congress

The 87th Congress now convened will be asked in the two years ahead to perform many specific tasks, some urgent and some routine. It could fill another role of perhaps immeasurable consequence to the country.

It could help to establish a new national mood.

Basically that burden falls upon the president-elect, John F. Kennedy. It was he who, during the long campaign, said he would demand new sacrifices from the American people. It was he, too, who often called for a return to the "pursuit of excellence."

If we are indeed to put ourselves on a new, high road of achievement, the new president must lead the way. In his office he has prestige and power to influence the citizenry as no other single man can do.

But the job should not be his alone. An alert, forward-looking Congress can do much to fortify its presidential leadership in such a task.

In a recent statement, the National Committee for an Effective Congress put the challenge sharply:

"Certainly the judgment of history when applied to Mr. Kennedy and to the 87th Congress will be based on how far they advance beyond the political routine of good housekeeping and start to cultivate the strains of quality by which the society can be rescued from mediocrity.

"Statesmanship will be tested by how far the frontier of excellence is penetrated."

In postwar America there has been too little interest in achievement, far too great a tendency to seek maximum return for minimum effort.

Often it has been argued that Americans today are afflicted with a lack of caring, that they are unconcerned with the fate and fortune of others, both at home and abroad.

Some would make an even stiffer case, however, with the contention that all too many do not really care enough about themselves. They measure achievement by the acquisition of material comforts, not by the pursuit and accomplishments of excellence.

The uniqueness of the human being, particularly the free human being, is his capacity to develop high physical and mental skills. If he does not use this capacity he is wasting himself.

We have had in this country too much of this kind of waste.

The task of the new president and a supporting Congress is now to stir Americans to use themselves to the fullest, to end their self-defeating contentment with mediocrity, and put them back on the hard but rewarding path of accomplishment.

Well Remembered

The Alamo has just been "remembered" by the federal government. Along with six other famous Texas sites, it has been designated as a national historic landmark.

It's part of a new program by the Interior Department to encourage the states and other owners of historically important buildings or sites to preserve them. Not that Texans needed any encouragement about the Alamo, however.

How Effective Was Labor's Political Action Effort?

By PETER EDSON
Written For NEA

WASHINGTON—(NEA)— Serious questions on the effectiveness of organized labor's political action efforts in the last election campaign are being raised by more careful analysis of results in the congressional races.

First conclusions are that where unions endorse a candidate, it may help in 60 per cent of the cases. Where unions oppose a candidate, the opposition is 2 per cent effective.

There Were Two Attempted Labor "Purges" of "antilabor" congressmen in the 1960 elections. Both flopped dismally, according to tabulations made by Civic Affairs Associates of Washington.

After House passage of the Landrum-Griffin labor reform bill in 1959, President James B. Carey of International Union of Electrical Workers sent a hot letter to the 229 congressmen who had voted to substitute this measure for the much milder bill approved by the House Labor Committee.

"We wish to assure you," wrote Carey, "that we shall do all in our power to prove to the working men and women in your district that you have cast your lot against them and that they should therefore take appropriate action at the ballot box."

Of these 229, only six were defeated. Eighteen of the 229 retired or died before the election and 205 were re-elected.

James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters' union attempted a more narrow purge, but was no more successful. He picked out 56 of the 229 to work against. They were the 56 who had won election in 1958 by 55 per cent of the vote or less in their districts.

Only one of the 56 was defeated. Six retired or died before election and 49 were re-elected in spite of Hoffa opposition.

Biehl P. Clarke, of Civic Affairs Associates, who compiled these results, points out that the Teamsters' political organization, still "primitive on political know-how" did not realise that the 55 per cent category based on 1958 election returns was not a reliable basis on which to figure. The reason given is that 1958 was so disastrous for Republicans that 1960 could hardly fail to show a substantial improvement.

Both "COPE" and "DRIVE," the two principal labor union political operators in the last election, claim about 60 per cent success in electing congressional candidates they backed.

AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education backed 24 candidates for the U. S. Senate. Fifteen won for a .625 batting average.

The Teamsters' Democratic, Republican and independent voters' education organization backed 19 candidates for the Senate and elected 12 for a batting average of .632.

COPE backed 256 candidates for the House and 157 of them were elected for a batting average of .609.

DRIVE backed 233 candidates for the House and 137 of them were elected for a batting average of .588.

While these percentages look good, "they are actually meaningless," according to the Civic Affairs Associates analysis.

There were 437 congressmen to be elected. AFL-CIO unions chose to endorse candidates in only 59 per cent of the districts. Teamster locals in only 53 per cent.

"Anyone with a little political know-how could pick 100 congressmen to support who were sure of re-election and be able to bat 1.000, barring death or acts of God," the Civic Affairs analysis points out. But such winners would have been elected without support, so it would have been of no account.

What Stands Out is that COPE backed 99 congressional candidates who lost out and DRIVE backed 96. So labor union support is not an infallible assurance of victory.

And in many races labor political organization support had to be concealed for fear the public knowledge of it would backfire and help defeat the endorsed candidate.

The young actress says she is getting the greatest workout of her life as the star of "West Side Story," a big movie.

"It's my 30th picture," she says. "In between my first, when I was 4, and this one, there have been some worthwhile ones. There were also quite a few I'd like to forget.

"I'd far rather do fewer excellent films than star in some fantastically bad film just because the money was good."

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Hollywood prop men continue to amaze.

In "The Wackiest Ship in the Army," Jack Lemmon, Ricky Nelson and John Lund did a slapstick scene in the ship's bakery storage room.

Flour dust filled the air but in the rushes it was discovered that actual flour wouldn't hang in the air long enough to be photographed.

Director Richard Murphy put the problem up to prop man Charlie Granucci. It was no problem.

He just filled a spray gun with mineral oil and ejected clouds of oil into the scene.

On the color screen, it looked exactly like flour dust.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Jerry Lewis has built one of the most fabulous sets in Hollywood history for "Ladies Man," in which he is producer, director, writer and star.

The set is a replica of the Hollywood Studio Club, the home away from home for many aspiring young actresses. The set, costing $600,000, is filled with bedrooms, bathrooms etc., but it's too realistic. Some workers have been found snoozing in back bedrooms.

The Mature Parent

Face Fact: Today's World Robs Children of Our Time

MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

He is the father of a small boy whom he obviously loves. However, he can spend only catch-as-catch-can time with him. For this father's profession is one that requires him to report for work at 5 a.m. and may hold him until 10 p.m.—times when young Tate is in bed. But on lucky days actor Tom Ewell will get home at 6:30 p.m.; and he and young Tate have a while together.

Said I to the star of TV's "Tom Ewell Show":

"The child psychology experts would tell you that this problem doesn't matter. They would say that it's the 'quality' not the 'quantity' of time you spend with Tate that matters. Do you believe that?"

Said Tom Ewell to me:

"No, I don't. I have decided that it is better to honestly regret the circumstances that deprive my child of my time than to pretend they don't exist. There is a conflict between my work and my fatherhood and I face it."

I applaud this attitude of a working parent.

I didn't used to. I used to swallow the soothing syrup administered by the child psychology experts.

I use to believe that it was fine for us to deprive our children of our home presence for most of their waking life so long as we made those prebedtime 60 minutes with them count. Not any more.

Now I think that the experts who sing us this lullaby are just trying to "adjust" us to this difficult place the world has become instead of encouraging us to know that there are things about it which are dehumanizing and destructive.

As usual, the "adjustment" specialists ask too much of people.

The suburban father whose eight-hour day at the office is extended by three hours of commuting is not apt to arrive home in any condition to give vital "quality" to those 60 prebedtime minutes with Johnny and Linda.

He gets home tired, frazzled, wanting not to give more time to people but keep some finally for himself.

The working mother who has spent her day navigating everything from her executive's pressures to her buses' crowded aisles cannot be expected to offer her children anything but her still preoccupied, still exhausted half-presence.

So, let's stop pretending that children are not deprived by the time and energies we sell to employers. Let's face the fact that they are—and find our poise not in a denial of the truth but in a more honest and regretful toleration of it.

The World Today

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sunny and sober.

Those two words spell one of the basic differences between President Eisenhower and President-elect Kennedy.

The elderly — 70-year-old — Eisenhower appears to have a sunny optimistic outlook. The young—43-year-old—Kennedy is not pessimistic but appears to take a much more sober view of the world.

Three stories, which moved within an hour of one another on Associated Press wires, point up the difference.

During the presidential campaign Kennedy complained the American economy was dragging its feet, needed to grow faster. Eisenhower has appeared rather satisfied with the rate of growth A number of economists agreed with Kennedy.

Thursday at 4:38 p.m. The AP moved a story saying the National Planning Association—which describes itself as a nonprofit, nonpolitical organization—teamed up on Kennedy's side, called for faster growth.

Trying to accomplish this is going to be one of Kennedy's toughest tasks.

At 5:30 p.m. The AP carried another story out of Washington. This one, basing its information on "authoritative sources," said Eisenhower would send Congress a budget which at this moment looks very sunny, indeed.

The country is in a recession, the fourth since World War II, and just preventing its getting worse will call for strenuous efforts by Kennedy's new administration.

If it does get worse, Kennedy may have to take stringent steps.

The President's budget is his estimate of how much spending should be for the fiscal year starting July 1 and how much the government will collect from revenue to offset the spending.

Eisenhower figures, The AP said that if Congress votes to spend no more than he suggests, then at the end of the fiscal year (June 30, 1962), the government revenue will be $600 million more than its expenses.

But this is based on a happy view of the future: The belief that the recession will get no worse and that a gradual recovery will begin in the next few weeks.

This is contrary to the way most economists see it.

Just 10 minutes after The AP finished moving the Eisenhower budget story it moved another as a bulletin out of New York where Kennedy is staying until his inauguration Jan. 20.

This one started off: "President elect John F. Kennedy tonight received study committee recommendations for swift emergency measures to combat the business slump. The group also urged temporary tax cuts if the situation turns a great deal worse in the spring."

The study group, appointed by Kennedy to evaluate economic conditions, wasn't predicting disaster which would require massive spending and public works.

But it did suggest a number of steps to end the slump without trying to be drastic right away It then suggested drastic ones if the recession takes a mean downturn.

FINDING THE WAY

STORM INSURANCE

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.
Written For NEA

It happened in the lobby of a New York hotel. Two of us, strangers to each other, were chatting as the news was broadcast that Buffalo had had its first snowstorm of the season

My companion made a few nasty comments about my city, to which I quickly retorted, and so he softened his verbal blows. Well he might, for within a few weeks he had to confront the same problem in his own bailiwick.

Mark Twain said that we all talk about the weather and do nothing about it, but what about the moral weather? What about the personal calamities that seem to snow us under? What about the great drifts of circumstances that get pushed up against individuals and keep them from developing traction for the movement of their hopes and dreams?

William Faulkner in his Nobel Prize speech suggested that the true function of the writer ought to be "to help man endure by lifting his heart, by reminding him of courage and honor and pride and compassion and pity and sacrifice which have been the glory of his past."

It's a noble ambition, for one of the marks of a great faith is this ability to recognize the terrors of the storm and not lose courage.

Once upon a time men looked beyond the storm for a source of courage. Read the ancient litanies and you discover the inventory of personal and cosmic calamities, and always the prayer, "Good Lord, have mercy upon us."

A modern litany of Stephen Vincent Benet says it differently:

"This being a time confused with few clear stars
Either private or public
Out of its darkness, I make a litany
For the lost, the half-lost and the desperate:
Chloral have mercy upon us,
Luminal have mercy upon us,
Freud have mercy upon us,
Life have mercy upon us."

There's not much courage here for a storm.

We don't discover such courage by denying the storms or by any form of ostrich thinking. The men who have exhibited great faith knew the dangers of the storms and resented them enough to look to the God beyond the storms.

Those who have lifted values for mankind have kept a sense of integrity in the midst of the deluge. The leaders who have strengthened life were never disheartened by the storms They knew that ultimately "nothing can separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus." When the stars are hidden, these men of intelligent faith are like "stars in a dark night."

Storms of any kind—and that includes snowstorms — are a nuisance. Yet there is nothing that can surpass the confidence of knowing that you have some moral snowshoes for the drifts and a faith that can weather anything that comes in the New Year.

This being a time with few clear stars; Lord, by Thy mercy, guide us.

Doubts Value of Forcing Children to Aid Parents

BY MARIE DAERR

Should children be forced to give money to their needy parents? Alvin L. Schorr, family life specialist for the Social Security Administration, isn't sure they should.

Schorr points out that 35 states have laws requiring children to do this. However, he says, such contributions are not customary American family practice and "give rise to administrative difficulties and grave questions of equity."

The specialist has just finished a study on "Filial Responsibility in the Modern American Family." It has made him decide that our country's social security program "promotes independent living and warm relationships between parents and grown children."

Schorr found that only 5 to 10 per cent of America's older people receive money from children who live separately from them When grown children do give their parents money, the amount is small, averaging $200 to $250 a year.

Because of the strict way "dependent parent" is defined, only 35,000 dependent parents get payments under social security. This compares with a total of 10,000,000 social security beneficiaries in 1959.

Only 25 to 30 per cent of our older people live with their adult children, Schorr discovered. The percentage has been going down in recent years, because social security makes it possible for the aged to live independently, if they so wish.

Older people who do live with their children do so for convenience, to help their children or because they themselves need help. And most of those who live separately keep in touch with their children through visits and the telephone.

States set up their own policies regarding support of needy parents. And, according to Schorr's study, often there is "high human cost" to support requirements.

In general, the children of needy older people do not have much money themselves. Laws requiring them to give money to their parents are "likely to interfere with the advancement of adults and the nurture and education of their children," in Schorr's opinion.

Schorr admits that state laws on support of parents result in some savings in old age assistance payments. But, he says, opinions are divided as to whether the savings are worth while.

A—No, because no back payments were due. However, social security will pay a lump sum death benefit.

Q—My first husband died before receiving social security. We had been married 20 years. I remarried. My husband has divorced me. I am now 71. Is there any chance of receiving social security benefits based on either husband's account? — R. A.

A—No. But perhaps you can receive state old age assistance.

Lean Child, Longer Life

CHUBBY. While a chubby child may seem cute, the lean child is more likely to be more healthy. Although more and more adults are becoming aware that a reasonable degree of leanness is good health insurance, many of them, unfortunately have not been able or willing to understand the importance of avoiding fatness in infants and children, reports the Nutrition Foundation.

The Foundation states that high pressure advertising exhorts parents to overfeed their children, in the false belief that size can be equated with health. A team of investigators discovered that on the average American children are 10 per cent too heavy. Don't overstuff them.

Farmer Grain Co-Op To Manage Elevator On The Mississippi

A 4,300,000-bushel grain elevator — to be operated by Illinois Grain Corporation—will be constructed at Granite City Harbor, Louis J. Hertel, IGC president, announced last week.

Construction will start this spring and the target date for completion is June, 1962.

Bi-State Development Agency, an agency developing the port area at Granite City Harbor, will sell revenue bonds to finance the project and will construct the huge elevator.

Financing of this elevator will be similar to the method used by the Chicago Regional Port District to finance construction of the 6½ million bushel Gateway Elevator at Chicago's Lake Calumet, Hertel explained.

The St. Louis area elevator will cost about $5,350,000 and will be built by the Bi-State Development Agency on land leased from the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers. Bi-State earlier financed construction of facilities for Granite City Steel through the sale of revenue bonds.

The new elevator site fronts on Granite City Harbor and lies between the area to be developed by the Tri-Cities Regional Port District and the existing wharf and terminal operated by Bi-State Development Agency.

A Long Lease

Hertel said Illinois Grain Corporation will operate the terminal as a public elevator under a long-term lease.

When this elevator is completed IGC will have a total of almost 1 million bushels of terminal space available through this new elevator and facilities at Gateway, Hertel emphasized.

"Construction and activation of a major facility in the St. Louis area will answer a long felt need of IGC and its member companies," Hertel stated. "Illinois Grain Corporation, a cooperation corporation affiliated with Illinois Agricultural association, and its members—including many country cooperatives in the southern third of the state—have for years studied the need for a St. Louis elevator to round out the company's state-wide merchandising activity, which now includes the 6,500,000 bushel Gateway Elevator at Chicago, six sub-terminal elevators at Lacon, Hennepin, Havana, Morris, Dallas City, Naples and a small terminal house at Tampa, Florida."

The elevator project is the culmination of negotiations which began in 1951, but which had been previously suspended in 1957. Negotiations were reopened last year and were carried to conclusion last month.

Jersey Farmers Harvesting Red Clover Fields

By ARTHUR THATCHER

JERSEYVILLE — Several Jersey County farmers set some kind of record last week by combining red clover seed in January.

Frank Parsell of Jerseyville, who owns and operates a farm east of this city, reported Thursday morning that he had spent the past three days of sunshiny, warm January weather combining red clover seed at his place in the country.

"The unusually warm weather made it possible for one to take his lunch," Parsell stated, "and eat it in the field. I did just that thing."

"Another interesting fact in conjunction with the combining was that there are still extensive patches of snow in places in the fields, but the clover heads were above the top of the snow and the combine operated in good conditions above the snow areas."

Parsell indicated that the seed yield was very good, but said that some of it had naturally fallen from the clover heads since it matured early in the autumn.

Feeding and management of beef cattle and feeder calves will be the topic for discussion during a cattle tour Jan. 13, according to announcement made this week by John Pero, who assumed his duties as farm adviser for Jersey County Jan. 1. The tour will begin at 1 p.m., at the Hugh Moore Jr., farm. Two other stops are planned during the tour in which a setup utilizing wet corn and an automatic feeding system will be featured.

W. F. Nickelson, extension specialist in animal science, will be present to discuss the various phases of feeding and management and to prevent the most recent research findings conducted by Illinois University.

Plant Food Men To Meet Here

Fertilizer dealers, manufacturers and fieldmen from Illinois and Missouri will come to Jacksonville Thursday for a meeting on soil testing, fertilizer recommendations and liming recomendations based on research at the University of Illinois.

The meeting will begin at 1:30 p.m. at Hamilton's restaurant, and is scheduled to close at 8:30 p.m.

George Trull, Morgan County farm adviser, will preside. The program will be presented by Sam Aldrich, professor of soil fertility extension, and James Laverty, who is in charge of the state soil testing laboratory.

4-H Electricity School Begins Wednesday

Bob Hayward Jr., assistant farm adviser, announces that the annual 4-H electricity school will begin Wednesday evening at Farm Bureau hall. Registration will be at 7:30 p.m.

As last year, the course will be taught at three levels: beginning, intermediate and advanced. Representatives of the Illinois Power Co. and REA will be the instructors.

Hayward also announces there will be a district conference for 4-H leaders in Jacksonville on Feb. 9, beginning at 9:30 p.m. at Centenary church. The luncheon, which will be provided by the Sears Foundation, will be served by the Morgan-Scott Home Bureau at Farm Bureau hall.

Illinois Farmers Outlook Letter

ANOTHER GOOD YEAR FOR HOG RAISERS?

The holiday season brought good news for hog producers—a strong indication that 1961 will be another profitable year.

Each year just before Christmas the United States Department of Agriculture reports on current and prospective trends in the volume of hog production. Coming at this time (the report was released on December 22) it often gets too little attention because of the many other news stories and activities of the holiday season. So, let's review the most important facts in the report and see what they portend for farmers.

MARKET PROSPECTS — FIRST HALF OF 1961. The 1960 fall pig crop totaled 41,550,000 head. This was 3 per cent less than one year before, and 1½ per cent less than two years before. All pigs born in the six months, June through November, are counted as fall pigs. Most of them will reach market weights in the first six months of 1961.

The trend toward more uniform distribution of monthly farrowings continued in 1960, but there was no drastic shift in the fall farrowing schedules. The sharp cutback in 1960 spring farrowings carried over a little into the first four months of the fall season. Thus 6 per cent fewer sows farrowed from June through September of 1960 than in the same period of 1959. But in October and November sow farrowings were 8 per cent greater than a year before.

These figures point to market supplies of hogs in the next four months (January-April) 5 to 8 per cent less than a year ago. Marketings may be about the same as they were two years ago, when prices at terminal markets held around the $16.00 mark. As compared with two years ago, population is up 3½ per cent and consumer buying power may be up 8 to 10 per cent. On the other hand, pork will meet more competition from beef and poultry than it did two years ago. Supplies of these meats may be up around 10 per cent from the 1959 levels.

Beginning about next May, market supplies of hogs may equal or exceed those of this past year. This expectation reflects the reported increase of 8 per cent in October-November farrowings. But storage stocks of pork likely will be small, and prices will be set on a day-today and week-to-week basis. Prices seem likely to range in the upper teens during the late spring and early summer.

MARKET PROSPECTS — SECOND HALF OF 1961. Farmers reported in December that they planned to increase their 1961 spring farrowings by only 4 percent over last year. We believe that the actual increase will be considerably larger, say 5 to 8 per cent. But even such an increase would not provide excessive supplies of pork. An increase of more than 20 per cent would be required to bring hog production back to the same level in relation to population as we had in 1959.

Pork likely will meet record large competitive supplies of both beef and poultry next fall. Consumer buying power may be increasing, but will not have reached boom proportions. Prices of hogs may not average quite so high as in the last half of 1960, but lower costs and bigger volume should maintain profit levels.

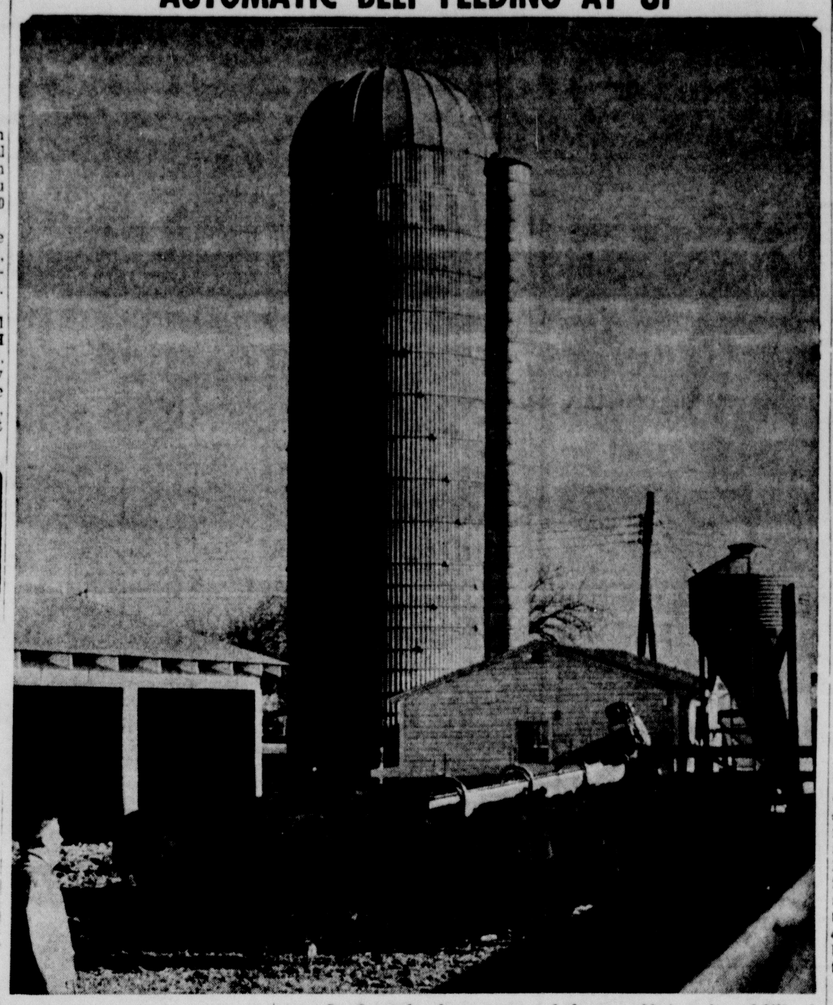
AUTOMATIC BEEF FEEDING AT UI



Beef cattle cluster around the new University of Illinois automatic beef feeding installation. Object of the new system is to fit together automatic feeding components from many different manufacturers into a single working unit.

Target: Maximum Automation

University of Illinois agricultural engineers plan to carry feed automation to the limit this winter at their new, completely automatic beef feeding installation.

Agricultural engineer Don Daum says the main purpose behind the automatic feeding set-up is to fit together components from many different manufacturers into a single working unit.

Daum points out that there are many pieces of automatic equipment on the market. But, to date, little has been done to fit these pieces into a compact, automatic feed handling unit.

Key to the U. of I. feeding system is a commercial silo unloader controlled by an automatic timer and modified to deliver silage at a uniform rate.

Under the new feeding system, silage is stored in a concrete stave silo, grain in a self-unloading bin, and protein supplement in a hopper-bottom bin.

Switches Control Flow

Pneumatic pressure switches govern the flow of grain and supplement into an automatic blender-grinder and deliver the ground concentrates by auger to a storage bin over the silage conveyor.

At this point, two automatic time clocks take control of the feed handling operation. One clock selects the time of day of the feeding period. The other clock controls the length of the feeding period.

The clocks have direct control over a vibrator feed meter located under the concentrate bin. They also control silage unloading and delivery equipment.

The Right Mixture

Taking its clue from the automatic clocks, the vibrator feed meter meters the correct amount of concentrate mixture into the silage as it moves by auger conveyor from the silo to the feed bunk.

In the feedlot, an experimental bunk distributor can be set to dump the material on either side of the bunk.

The new beef feeding system was first operated in January 1960 feeding silage only. The system has been modified considerably during the summer and is probably in for some more minor changes now that researchers are trying it out in a full-scale feeding program this winter.

U.I. Agricultural Engineer Don Daum checks concentrate from a vibrator feed meter, and silage from a silage auger conveyor — two key components of the set-up. At this point concentrates and silage are mixed together for delivery to the feedlot.

Swine Breeders Meet In Peoria Saturday

Swine producers from all over Illinois will gather at Jefferson hotel in Peoria Saturday, Jan. 14 for the 14th annual meeting of the Illinois Swine Herd Improvement association. Current swine problems will be discussed according to the announcement by Frederic B. Hoppin, Executive Secretary, Lincoln.

Speakers include Prof. H. L. Self, Iowa geneticist on artificial breeding of swine, and L. L. Stewart, prominent Indiana hog producer who will discuss changes he has made in the last five years to keep pace with the changing and growing swine industry.

Voting delegates will conduct the business session which includes the election of three directors, plus action on a suggested change in the constitution authorizing the board to appoint three directors at large. The balance of the day will be devoted to a program of interest to all swine producers.

Prof. H. G. Russell, University of Illinois, will give the test station and 56 day litter summary. B. H. (Bill) Jones, Chicago Stockyards will discuss suggested changes in the USDA daily market reports.

The noon luncheon for all in attendance will be followed by a presentation by the Illinois Pork Queen, Miss Marilyn Jane Bailey.

The final session will be a panel discussion with Dr. O. B. Ross, head animal science department, Univ. of Illinois as moderator. The speakers mentioned above will be J. W. Albrecht, DVM, Princeton, and Harold Boucher, secretary, Hampshire Swine Registry. This panel will discuss current swine problems and progress toward their solution.

The ISHIA, according to Hoppin, is composed of 25 local swine herd improvement associations, the state breed associations and other affiliated groups. The testing program has received major attention from the association in recent years. Carcass evaluation in cooperation with packers has become a popular tool of the commercial producers in recent years.

George Brauer of Cass County is vice president of the association and Ross Gates of Macoupin is a director.

SOIL FERTILITY PROGRAM WEDNESDAY

Farmers and their wives are invited to attend a crop and fertility meeting to be held Wednesday at Centenary Methodist church. The program will begin with a chili luncheon at noon and Eldon Powel of the plant food division, Illinois Farm Supply Co., will discuss soil fertility and crop management.

Soybean yields in 1960 averaged 23.8 bushels an acre—one-half bushel less than the record set in 1958. Total production of beans is figured at 559 million bushels—four percent short of the 1958 record.

Ship Surplus Abroad? Benson Has Set Stage For Such A Program

By OVID A. MARTIN
Associated Press Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—If the Kennedy administration decides to make a big push in moving America's farm surpluses abroad, it will find that the outgoing Eisenhower administration has laid groundwork for such an effort.

American agricultural commodities are moving into export markets in volumes undreamed of a decade ago. And they are going to areas which not so many years ago obtained little from this country.

Retiring Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson has been criticized by political foes and some farm leaders for his policies relating to farm price supports and government crop controls. But there is fairly general feeling that Benson's department did a remarkable job in getting extra farm commodities into foreign markets and especially into backward and hungry areas where they were greatly needed.

One Of Six Acres

Experts in recent years have been establishing new records only to be broken in the succeeding year. This year the United States supplies 17 per cent of the world trade in farm products. It sold the output from one-sixth of the crop acreage harvested.

Much of the success in the export field is attributed by Benson's aides and others to two things: (1) his foreign trade travels as a farm salesman, and (2) an agricultural surplus disposal program enacted in [illegible].

A Great Traveler

The secretary visited 42 countries—traveling 106,000 miles—on eight trade development and goodwill trips during his eight-year tenure. These trips were made at the request of President Eisenhower. In all he spent 42 days singing the praises of American agriculture as well as the American way of life.

Since 1954, when the big export development efforts were started, the United States has moved nearly $21 billion of farm commodities abroad. Of this amount well over $7 billion worth was sold under the surplus disposal program and $14 billion into markets which paid in dollars.

Token Payment

Under the surplus disposal program, the United States accepts foreign currencies from countries short of dollars and needing aid in economic development. Much of this latter currency has been loaned to the recipient countries to help speed economic development and to bring closer ties to this country.

Food needs abroad are still substantial. There are many as yet untapped outlets. But new programs, new device and measures will be needed to take advantage of them.

Spray operators, insecticides and herbicides once again take the University of Illinois spotlight when the 13th annual Illinois Custom Spray Operators' Training School meets January 25-26.

Farmers' Tax Guide Available

A supply of the 1961 Farmers' Guide on Income and Self-employment Taxes has been received by Farm Adviser George Trull and may be secured at the Morgan County Extension office without charge.

"We have had several inquiries for copies of the guide during the past two weeks," Trull said. "I wish to announce they are now available.

Among the topics discussed are soil bank payments, gasoline tax refunds, marketing quota penalties, part of the farm sold, installment sale of farm, drought sale of breeding animals, soil and water conservation and the role of self employment.

Chapin FHA Has Carol Sing And Holiday Party

The Chapin F.H.A. members held their annual caroling and Christmas party at the Chapin high school. The girls sang carols to shut-ins of the Concord and Chapin communities. The group returned to the Homemaking room at school where everyone enjoyed several games led by Elaine Ragan, Faye Hacker, Mary Rae LaKamp, and Donna Moss. Punch and assorted cookies were served from a colorfully decorated table by the Chapter Mothers, Mrs. Owen Lael and Mrs. Edwin LaKamp.

The members exchanged gifts by the matching of Christmas names. Maxine Lael, president, presented the Chapter Mothers and advisor, Mrs. Audra Taylor, with their gifts from the girls.

Committees responsible for the plans were: decoration, recreation, carols, routes, refreshments, and transportation.

Those providing transportation were: Mrs. Mardell Rigor, Mrs. Elva Strickler, Vern Fouts, Owen Lael, Mrs. Rebecka LaKamp and Arlo Schumacher.

We believe—and we think the records prove—that the Sex-Sal-Link is the most outstanding brown egg layer on the market today, and the equal of any white egg layer. It averages 240 to 255 eggs per bird housed for a full year of lay, has good feed efficiency and egg size with low mortality.

This year, head for higher egg income with the famous J. J. Warren Sex-Sal-Link from your Swift's Hatchery. Order from us soon.

Fact is, the dog's attachment to the school and the boys is so well known by the school faculty that the last time report cards were distributed, King got one, too.

Wonder World—

Pangolin And Dormouse

By Rip Barnsdall

Scaly Anteater

The pangolin is also called the scaly anteater. It lives in Asia, Africa and some of the Pacific islands. It looks something like a giant pine cone.

Large scales that overlap cover the body of the pangolin. The scales are very much like the armor worn by knights of old. The scales serve to protect the pangolin from its enemies.

When an enemy approaches, the pangolin rolls itself into a ball. The scales are made to stand out so that sharp ends point outwards.

Pangolins feed mainly on termites and ants, especially liking to feed on the eggs. Strong claws on the front feet are used in digging out termite and ant hills. Some kinds of pangolins spend most of their time on the ground, while there are other kinds that will climb trees from time to time.

The largest kind of pangolin may reach a length of six feet.

The scales are up to five inches across and about three inches long.

Storybook Creature

If you have read "Alice in Wonderland," you will remember the dormouse. Even though it is a mouse, it acts more and looks more like a squirrel.

It spends most of its life in trees. There it feeds on fruits, nuts, and seeds.

It is found in Europe, Africa, and Asia. During the fall it goes into hibernation.

During its active season, the dormouse is out at night. It rests during the day.

The dormouse is covered with very soft, silky fur. It has a long, bushy tail and very bright, round eyes.

True Story—

Long-Ago School Girl

By Mary Pence Claywell

Part 14: Lunch Time

Directly underneath the dinner pail shelf were nails or hooks in the wall where the children hung their coats and caps. On the floor, lined up neatly against the wall, were their overshoes or boots, and believe it or not, they were washed clean and didn't at all put up an untidy appearance . . . for teachers saw to that!

The minute the children were dismissed, they hurried to the shelf and reached for their bead-marked little bucket, and they were very careful always to get their own.

One of the greatest purchases made for the school year was when Ma bought the bright tin pails, either five or ten cent ones, and then helped each of her children find a pretty bead to tie to the ring on the lid to mark it.

Just because I know your mouths will water, I'm inviting you boys and girls of today, to join the children of yesterday and, in imagination, share their dinner hour: (It's quite alright if any of you old-time teachers want to join the group also in happy memories for, I assure you, this writer will be there. It's alright too, if you give most of your lunch to some child who forgot his dinner pail . . . I would do the same . . . for all old teachers know that this did happen, and it made you feel so good, to share the contents of the dinner pail . . . with those you loved!)

In warm weather, the children went outside and sat in little groups on the grass under the trees to eat their lunch.

They sat cross-legged, with the pail between their knees or on their laps. My, what fun it was to lift the lid and view the contents at noon, (although almost all of them had peeked inside on the way to school to see what they could spare for the first recess).

Mother nearly always put something extra in it, with a warning not to eat anything else until dinner time. Even a beginner soon learned to obey, for it was terrible to eat too much at recess and find you were just as hungry at noon . . . with an almost empty bucket!

If a child had an extra nice lunch, with maybe a banana or orange, (which was indeed very seldom), or maybe "store" bread (instead of homemade bread) and bologna. Or maybe better still, a stick or two of candy; that was something worth displaying! The lucky one usually laid any such rarities out on the bucket lid for all eyes to behold, and strangely enough . . . left it until last!

But wait, my Dears . . . you must not miss the big quarter of homemade apple pie, sugar or molasses cookies, doughnuts, home-meat sandwiches made with Ma's fluffy, tender biscuits, to say nothing of "jelly bread," and big red apples. These were all dainties fit for a king; and every pail held such wholesome, satisfying foods as these!

IN-THE-BOOTH TRAINING

SHAKER HEIGHTS, Ohio (AP)— Youngsters at Woodbury Junior high school are given a chance to participate in a realistic election as part of their citizenship training.

Dr. Donald A. Wesley of the Social Studies Department explained in a recent issue of the Ohio Education Association's magazine that there is a residence requirement (a month) for new students, permanent registration to vote during all three years of attendance, voting booths furnished by the city, student election workers and close adherence to adult voting procedures.

HANG UP THEIR GUNS

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)— The kindergarten of Charlotte's Forest Hills Presbyterian church sent the following notice to parents:

"Children may not bring guns of any type to kindergarten."

A Christmas Candle

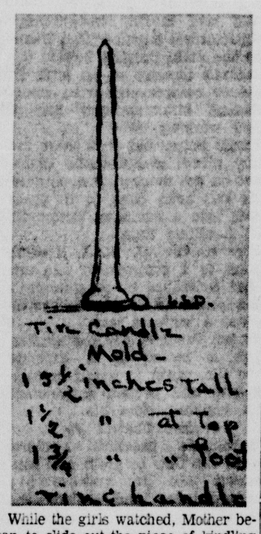
By Mrs. Otto Dorr

Part 2:

Light Through The Night

Cautiously they carried it out doors to hang the mold high on a wire clothesline, and thoroughly chill the wax into a solid column. No hungry dog or cat could touch their handwork for none of them could walk on wire!

By evening, the tallow would be hard through and through. "Bring it in," Mother would say to Timmy, "Now we can cut your knot close to the mold point."



While the girls watched, Mother began to slide out the piece of kindling wood. Then, holding the loops to pull steadily, sometimes the candle slipped out of the mold promptly and some year it stuck here and there where the old tin had roughened. But Mother was skillful and at length their tall and perfect white candle was ready to stand in the study holder that exactly fitted it.

Mother had washed and cleaned the candlestick; and though chipped and dull, it seemed wonderful to her little family when their candle stood in its socket to wait on a small rough wood table by their bedroom window. After supper it would be lighted for this was Christmas Eve and their vigil light must shine outdoors too.

When the children were tucked in bed, Mother touched the new white wick with a match. All night long their candle would make flower shadows on the dingy walls and send little waves of light skipping across their dingy and uneven ceiling.

It was hard to close their eyes, but someway they would drop asleep. Timmy, only, managed to waken at times.

There, certainly burned their candle, but as the hours passed it grew shorter and shorter. By daylight only a little puddle of warm tallow remained. Again, that had been the happiest night of all the year.

There lay a simple gift for each beside the candle stick. But not until next December would they have their candle's light all night, sleeping or walking.

The End

Just For Fun

By Joseph A. Smith

Game

Here is another fun game for a snowy day (if there are two of you with time to occupy) that is both fun and worth-while.

First off, take a ruler, pencil (or pen), and draw twenty lines 1/4 inch apart horizontally across a sheet of typing paper. Do the same across the paper vertically.

Now you have a sheet of paper full of many little squares. Give your opponent a pencil (or pen) too at this time.

Start the game by thinking (to yourself) of a word, and write the first letter of that word in the upper left-hand corner—the first square. You may after first starting go either across the page or down the page. Later, you can even go up the page.

Immediately after putting down your first letter, your opponent places a second letter alongside yours. He too must be thinking of a word.

At any time, as the game proceeds, the opponent may challenge the other player to state his word if he suspects no such word exists. If the word can not be given upon demand, the player being challenged loses a point. If the challenger is incorrect, he loses a point.

The game is won when one player has lost a total of five points! Be careful; be relatively sure you're correct before you challenge your opponent!

Another more challenging version of this game would be to see how many words of 4 letters or more you can complete while your opponent is doing the same. Allow one point for each word of four or more letters that you succeed in finishing.

Again, the possible word might be challenged by your opponent. If he is correct, you would lose a point. If he is incorrect, he loses a point!

A dictionary should be used only as a means of proving the actual existence of any given word. It should not be referred to simply for looking up a possible word.

(This game was modified from "150 Games To Play" by Horace T. Elmo, and the book at the library tells about many other games.)

EARLY START

HIGLEY, Ariz. (AP)— Kimberlee Sossaman, 5, stopped at the door just before she left for her first day in kindergarten and told her mother:

"At last, Mom, I'm going to learn all about life."

Mystery Of The Silent Voices

By Joseph A. Smith

Part I: What Ear Can't Hear

Did you realize or stop to think that there are at all times literally hundreds of thousands of silent voices about you? Nor can you get away from them under normal circumstances!

You can't hear these particular voices, normally, for they are the many silent ones that pass by you on the wings of radio waves which are well beyond those frequencies that your ear can hear.

When you go to bed, the taxi-driver receives a call to pick up a passenger, perhaps the police car is told to go somewhere, that aircraft landing at Chicago Muncipal airport is receiving landing directions, a boat on the Great Lakes is perhaps contacting its home station or base. The latest news is being sent all over the United States just minutes after it has happened, or an emergency radio-dispatched car is being called to the scene of an accident.

One amateur friend in W6 land (California) is talking to a friend in K2 land (New York area aspecially), or another amateur is talking to someone in a far away land like Zanzibar. All this is going on while you rest, or while you walk down the street, etc.

Yes, it is a fact that the air around us is literally full of silent voices at any hour of the day or night!

Quite a few of we humans are curious people. We like to know what is going on, so we like to be listening in.

No doubt to many of you readers the Short-wave Listener hobby is not entirely a new one. Yet, it is still one of the most interesting ones available to the fellow with a limited budget that we can think of. And there are literally thousands all around the world and in this land of ours who agree.

The true ham radio enthusiast nightly takes an imaginary trip to far away lands and places via the short-wave and amateur bands. Yet, he never leaves his comfortable room and chair.

Total cost for the imaginary trip? Only a few cents worth of electricity and the cost of building a useful receiver There are many types of radios of many prices (large and small) that you can build or buy to use in this trip.

ROCKETS AND SPACE—

Astronauts Get Data On Rocket Launchings

By Walter B. Hendrickson Jr.

As part of their training to fly a capsule into orbit and back the seven Project Mercury Astronauts learned about the launch and ground support operations and equipment.

This phase of the astronauts' training is done in cooperation with the Air Force and private companies that furnish the boosters and launch facilities to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The launching facilities that will be used to rocket one of the Project Mercury astronauts into orbit are at Cape Canaveral, Florida. Training in these areas, and watching launch operations the Astronauts gain a complete knowledge of the launch phase of the Project Mercury mission.

Dangerous Phase

This knowledge will be valuable because the most dangerous part of any space flight is the launch phase. This is because the rocket motors are firing during this phase, and they run by means of controlled explosions of the fuel. Sometimes these explosions get out of control and destroy the rocket.

In a Project Mercury lunch, this would also destroy the astronaut if he didn't know what was happening in time to fire the capsule's escape rocket. Learning about the launch and ground support operations will provide the astronaut with this knowledge.

In training the astronauts, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration is using existing research development, training and test facilities of the government, industry and colleges all over the country. This gives the training program the most effectiveness at the least cost. In connection with this a number of experts in many of these areas will give lectures to the astronauts during the educational part of the training program.

The concentrated education of the astronauts started with a briefing, on the overall program, by members of the Space Tack Group staff. The Space Task Group is the part of the NASA responsible for Project Mercury. While assigned to the headquarters of the Space Task Group at Langley Research Center, Virginia, the astronauts will work as regular members of the group.

Each of the seven Project Mercury Astronauts has been assigned to the NASA by the branch of the armed forces to the NASA. They are still on active duty and so are still receiving military service pay. The astronauts will remain on duty with the NASA on a full time basis.

Mary Margaret McBride Holds Klatches In Barn

By JOY M[illegible]LER

N[illegible] (AP)—Three mornings a week a fresh-faced, white-haired woman with a kindly curiosity about people gathers her neighbors into her converted barn [illegible] in the Catskill Mountains.

There, over coffee sipped from paper cups, they discuss babies, pickles, African violets, the road-side litter problem.

The informal sessions could be any rural klatch but for two things: a microphone and Mary Margaret McBride.

Six years ago Mary Margaret ended two decades as the First Lady of radio and set out to find peace in the eternal variety of the mountains.

"I found it too," she says. "I have no ambition any more. It's wonderful."

But habit doesn't turn up its toes so easily. Mary Margaret found herself broadcasting a program called "Your Hudson Valley [illegible]" from her West Shokan, N.Y. home on a local station, WGHQ.

The guests are just for who happen in. Except for celebrated friends of long standing who drop by whenever they're invited, the visit[illegible] fame does not extend 30 miles outside West Shokan.

The talk doesn't always have the same weighty significance as in the old coast-to-coast hookup days when the important and famous people of the world were Mary Margaret's radio guests.

Now Mary Margaret's famous powers of persuasion are put to work eliciting an old family recipe from a forgetful neighbor, or moderating a debate on the best way to grow petunias.

The other day Mary Margaret returned to New York to help promote "Out of The Air," her new book about her 20 years in radio. Inevitably the question of her worst and best guests came up.

"The worst," she remembers, "was a newspaper society writer who was so scared her mouth could be heard chattering in every home and bar and grill that [illegible] across the nation. I never did get her gentled down."

Her best guest: Eleanor Roosevelt. "No matter what I ask," says Mary Margaret, "she always answers. She's mellow and kind, although there's an occasional [illegible] You can't get away with nonsense; you can't goo over her. She's very intelligent and has a sense of humor she's not always credited with. She's been up to West Shokan for broadcasts three times, and always stays to lunch."

This Week.. at Dixon Springs

The old year, 1960, seemed to pass rapidly but, even so, a lot of things happened and many changes occurred at the Dixon Springs Experiment Station. We might quickly identify it as the year of horses and horticulture.

The quarter-horse herd had been moved the year before from Urbana to Dixon Springs, but 1960 marked the first foaling on the Station. In like manner, the year before last the Department of Horticulture did some work on the station but in 1960 Bill Courter, extension horticulturist, became permanently stationed here and proceeded to produce strawberries, tomatoes, cucumbers, squash and many other small fruits and vegetables in superabundance.

Experimental work in pelleting feeds has been carried on since the early part of the decade, but again, 1960 marked the completion of a feed handling and processing plant, including an operating pellet mill. This year we have been able to compound a wide variety of pelleted rations, including even corn stover pellets and pellets in a variety of shapes and sizes.

Of course, we'll all remember 1960 as the year of the big snow when well over a foot during the last week in February It continued to fall during the next four weeks, and at no time during this period did we have less than a foot of snow on the ground. Oakley Robinson, cattleman, will probably remember best of all, because it came in the midst of calving season and the cow herd's fescue pastures were buried.

Then, 1960 was a good growing season too. Moisture conditions were excellent for producing pasture and grain. The fall was open and dry, making a relatively easy harvest. Corn on strong standing stalks yielded well into the 80-to 100-bushel range.

Added to our staff in July was an area resources developed adviser, Wes Erickson. Also, late last summer the Dick Andrews family and house trailer took up residence on the Station. Dick is our trapper, and every day he brings in a wide variety of animals—coons, skunks, rats, mice, foxes, possums—in fact, anything he can get in his traps. The reason behind all this trapping is to determine the prevalence of leptospirosis in the wild-animal population.

During the past year, Station personnel have been called upon to help with more and more southern Illinois beef herds entering the performance testing program.

You can learn about the many other things that happened during 1960 on Station tours and during cattle week and sheep day. Cattle week at the Station this year will be the week of February 6. Sheep day will be February 15.

GOOD NEIGHBORS — This picture got lost during the holiday tussle but it's still newsworthy, for Good Neighbors never go out of style.

Those shown above were among the many friends of the late Clyde Patterson and his family who got together last month to pick 40 acres of corn that Clyde produced on land owned by his father-in-law, Charles Hadden. They arrived with many thousands of dollars worth of tractors, corn pickers, trucks, wagons, hoists and elevators; harvested the crop and hauled it to the Patterson crib northwest of Jacksonville.

"I don't know who all to thank," Mrs. Patterson said last week. "I just want to say, Thank you, everybody."

Second row — Walt Uhnken, Butch Uhnken, John Killam, Hobart Rigg, Orval Moss, Walt Mosley, J. A. Bacon, Jensie Updike, Ernie Werries, Carl James, Adolph Werries, Robert Mawson, Robert Sanders, (I didn't even know the fine gentleman next to him, Mrs. Patterson says), Clyde Cooper, Wilson Henderson.

Atop the fence are Jim Hicks, John Finch, Dale Mawson, Leroy Moss, Doyle Taylor, Tom Williams, Bud Sandidge, Norman Cozart and Bob Hadden.

Many who helped during the morning hours were unable to be present as this picture was taken during the noon hour, when dinner was served at the Ranch House.

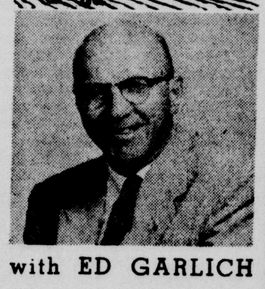
ACROSS THE Fields AND Furrows



with ED GARLICH

Lots of Plant Food Used!

Figures released by the agronomy department of the University of Illinois indicate that Illinois farmers used 418,000 tons mixed fertilizer in the first 6 months of 1960. Wet weather cut the amount by 10% compared with 1959.

Frozen Foods Forged Forward!

The Agricultural Marketing Service of the U.S.D.A. reports that the value of frozen foods marketed in 1959 was 230 million dollars. This amount was spent for one billion six hundred million pounds of frozen food. Ten years ago 563 million pounds were sold for 69 million dollars.

Can Do. But Will He?

The average farmer can do as much soil building in a few years as his grandfather did in a life time according to the National Plant Food Institute. The tools he'll use are modern improved management methods and the proper use of needed nutrients.

MEREDOSIA — The regular meeting of Meredosia Woman's Club was held in the Home Ec room of the high school Monday night with president, Mrs. Hal Naylor presiding. Opening ceremonies included the Pledge of Allegiance, "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," and the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. Clyde Buchanan, chairman of the program committee, introduced Mr. and Mrs. Brubeck of Beardstown and Mr. Brubeck gave a talk and demonstration on flower arranging. He demonstrated the use of colors by making a color wheel and presented several basic art principles applicable in arranging bouquets.

He showed numerous containers and new kinds of flower holders. Then he created an arrangement of white gladiolas and red roses and a corsage of red carnations, and the ladies drew numbers for the flowers. They were won by Mrs. Jack Wasson, Mrs. John Stanfield, and Mrs. Buchanan.

Roll call was answered by 17 members, and other routine business was transacted. Correspondence secretary, Mrs. Harold Diebert, read a "Thank You" from the Junior Club who were guests at the Christmas party.

Also the club will sponsor the installation of three or four gum machines in Meredosia, the proceeds from which will go to club work in Boystown.

Chairmen were reminded to send their annual reports to their twentieth district chairmen before Feb. 1, and it was mentioned that local pupils may audition for one of the four district music camp scholarships in Beardstown in March.

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's 100 years since the start of the Civil W.. but television is fighting it all over again.

NBC TV is launching its new hour-long Civil War centennial series "The Americans" on Jan. 23, replacing "Riverboat."

The show was originally called "The Blue and The Gray" but the NBC sales department ran into sponsor resistance with that title. Spokesman commented: "Some sponsors felt that the title was repugnant to the South. Don't ask me why."

Frank Telford, NBC executive producer who developed the series, said he liked the original title better at first but now leans to the new one.

"I'm a Civil War buff and a lot of the other buffs I know believe 'The Americans' is a better title. It was a war fought between Americans who each deeply believed in a principle."

The pilot show brings this out Darryl Hickman and Dick Davalos, the stars, portray brothers from Harper's Ferry, Va., whose principles differ.

Their split—Hickman to the North and Davalos to the South—is played against the capture of the government arsenal at Harper's Ferry when the Virginia Militia 450 strong rode against 45 Union soldiers defending the arsenal.

Telford says that battles and incidents of the war will be historically accurate.

"They have to be," he says "Too many people checking."

Australian-born Ron Randell, plays the commanding officer of the Virginia Militia in the pilot but then you can't get much farther south than Australia.

With The Girl Scouts

Activities are buzzing like bees for the Girl Scouts these days and many plans are being formulated now for the coming spring and summer. Some troops are now setting up arrangements for attending summer camp, saving money, learning outdoor basic skills and planning wardrobes.

Members of the camp committee met last Wednesday and worked toward furthering plans for summer camps. Here's a little hint about camp overheard at the meeting: the theme will be "Hand in Hand with Hawaii" and promises to be a very exciting one. The camp committee has even corresponded with the Girl Scout Council of Oahu and has already received many authentic, interesting and fun ideas from that council with the promise of more to come. Several members of the camp committee visited Camp Shagbark on Lake Jacksonville this past week to see what improvements and necessary repairs would have to be made.

Finance Drives

Council finance campaigns, to collect funds for operating expenses in 1961, are now over, and we are beginning to hear from the communities in the council area of the individual drives with gratifying results. These drives were held in the fall at the same time as the United Fund campaign was held in Morgan County and money raised in these drives is received for operating expenses for the coming year.

It is hoped that all communities who have not turned in the funds raised will contact the Scout office during the month of January, since no more money should be collected for the current year.

Our heads are buzzing with cookie plans, too! The letter to be given to parents of the girls selling cookies and the cookie plan book for leaders have been set up and will be given to the leaders along with other cookie material at the neighborhood meetings next month.

The program committee met Friday noon at Hamilton's cafe and discussed first the annual meeting of Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council to be held Thursday, Jan. 19, at 1 p.m. at the home of Mrs. William Gross, 1231 Mound avenue in Jacksonville. Every registered adult in Girl Scouting is expected to attend this important meeting.

Two Events

Two important events in February were also discussed in the meeting and planned for: An all-day heritage hike for all leaders on Feb. 22 so that these leaders can direct their troops in their heritage hikes and an International Tea to be held Feb. 25 for all foreign-born residents of the community. More will be given later about these exciting events.

Watch for the local annual report of your Council for 1960 which will be in your hand by Feb. 1. Members of the public relations committee met Friday morning to work on this report. The same committee will meet again next Friday, Jan. 13, at 9:30 a.m. at the Scout office.

Events for the coming week include two neighborhood meetings. Greene County Neighborhood will meet on Tuesday, Jan. 10, at 1:30 p.m. at the Legion Hall in Roodhouse. Cass County Neighborhood will meet at 9:30 a.m. on Thursday, Jan. 12, at the home of Mrs. Walter Lohman in Ashland.

On Wednesday, Jan. 11, there will be a meeting of mothers of second grade girls at the South Jacksonville school cafeteria at 2 p.m. in the interest of forming a new Brownie troop in that school.

New Senior Troop

At 7 p.m., also on Wednesday, all high school girls who are interested in joining the new Senior troop are invited to attend a meeting at the home of Mrs. Jean Gullion, troop leader, 321 East College avenue. It is not necessary that a girl has been in Scouting before, to join a Senior troop. She may begin her Scouting experience on the Senior level.

Members of the finance committee will meet at 11:30 a.m. on Friday, Jan. 13, at Hamilton's cafe for a regular session. The public relations committee will also meet Friday as mentioned above.

Members of Senior Troop No. 13 with their leader, Mrs. Robert Hemphill, were hostesses at a get-acquainted hour for Senior Scouts on Tuesday, Dec. 27, at the Congregational church in Jacksonville. The tea, held at 2 p.m., was attended by 10 members of the hostess troop and ten Senior Scouts from Winchester together with their leaders, Mrs. William Willsey and Mrs. Richard Coultas. Also guests at the event were Mrs. Ralph Sullivan, president of the council, Mrs. Robert Hartman, executive director, Mrs. William Gross, Mrs. Kathryn Mangan and Mrs. C. A. Hemphill.

A fine movie of the 1959 Senior Roundup was shown, even the stormy weather was pictured. The group learned some new Girl Scout songs and refreshments were served during the get-acquainted hour.

We are a United Fund agency.

Chapin Lutheran Circle Has Xmas Party At Church

CHAPIN—The Mary Martha Circle of St. Paul's Lutheran church of Chapin held its Christmas meeting in the church basement on the afternoon of Dec. 29th. Pastor Matzke led devotions and used as his topic "Christmas Lights" emphasized by the lighting of various colored candles.

Thirty-four members answered roll call by naming a Christmas carol.

The cheer committee, Mrs. Robert Burrus and Mrs. Wendell Middendorf, made three visits in December.

The Christmas cheer committee announced 200 bags of cookies taken to the State Hospital. Boxes of cookies were also given to other institutions.

Mrs. Theodore Staake, Mrs. Herman LaKamp, Mrs. Louis Werries, Mrs. Arlo Schumacker, Mrs. Russell Werries and Mrs. Robert Burrus are on a committee to plan the serving of the Triopia Athletic Banquet in May.

The meeting closed with the singing of 'Silent Night' followed by the Lord's Prayer.

The social committee, Mrs. Leland Werries, Mrs. Carlton Schumacker, and Lorna Fricke conducted contests in keeping with the Christmas season. Mystery pals were revealed by the exchange of gifts.

Delicious refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mrs. Herman Lakamp, Mrs. Henry Schone and Mrs. Russell Werries.

Jerseyville Fire Loss $45,350 In Year Just Ended

JERSEYVILLE — The fire at the Hutton Motor Company on South State Street on Dec. 31st accounted for the greater portion of the fire loss in the City of Jerseyville during the year 1960 according to the report of James Norris, secretary of the Fire Department. The total loss for the year was set at $45,350 and the estimated loss at the Hutton fire was $32,000.

The firemen made 66 local runs during the year and the largest loss in the residential section was at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyness Gilbert in December when their home and its contents were destroyed.

Of the total number of local calls answered, 13 were listed as commercial fires, most of which were of a minor nature and resulted from various causes.

One of the seventeen rural fire runs made by the department was on June 8 when a call was received to extinguish the blaze resulting from the crash of two airplanes in the northeast part of the county. The bodies of two of the crash victims were removed from the wreckage by firemen Paul Miller and James Norris. Two men from McDonnel Aircraft Corporation died in the crash. But two Navy test pilots escaped with minor injuries.

The annual report also stated that the inspections of schools made during National Fire Prevention Week in October were very satisfactory.

Secretary Norris is retiring from his post and will be succeeded by another Jerseyville businessman. Paul Miller, Norris in announcing his retirement, stated that the work he has assumed in the Boy Scout program conflicts with the regular meeting night of the Fire Department.

Five good reasons
...for good kitchen lighting!
If you have to peer when you slice a pickle, things can be downright dangerous. But don't worry. Not your eyesight, but your kitchen lighting may be at fault. A properly shaded 150-watt bulb or the equivalent for the main light, plus adequate light in modern glare-free fixtures at strategic working areas, can make kitchen life a carefree job. See your electrical contractor about good lighting over each work area in your kitchen. The cost will probably be less than you think. ILLINOIS POWER COMPANY

OHIO GAVE SOUTH MUSIC

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — In a sense, Ohio gave the South its "best" and "worst" songs of the Civil War.

Daniel Decatur Emmett of Mount Vernon, Ohio, composed "Dixie," the battle song that inspired Confederate troops. The Rev. H. D. L. Webster of Zanesville, Ohio, composed "Lorena," a sad love song that a rebel general contended caused more Southern desertions than anything else.

MAN'S CASTLE INVADED

DENVER (AP) — This is about a Denver man who, like so many husbands, has a joint checking account with his wife at the bank. Only he has a separate account, too, for poker winnings and similar windfalls.

The signature was almost identical—but not quite—to the man's own handwriting. But the man said he'd be glad to approve it. He recognized the handwriting. It was his wife's.

TV-Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Joan Crawford, who has adjusted her life to a point where it is comfortably and profitably filled with jobs she likes, would sacrifice her leisure and her sleep for a television series of her own.

"If just the right thing comes along," Miss Crawford qualified. "I think I would like to have an anthology series — the kind that would give an opportunity to do anything from drama to comedy."

Meanwhile Joan, a widow since the death of Alfred N. Steele in 1959, carefully picks and chooses the roles in which she is interested in both television and motion pictures—provided they don't conflict with her private life.

Recently, Joan relinquished an important part in "Return to Peyton Place," when she found it would require her presence in Hollywood during the Christmas holidays. She wanted to be in New York while her two youngest children, teen-age twins, Debbie and Cindy, were home from boarding school.

Today, and presumably until that just-right TV series comes along, Joan considers her two most important jobs bringing up the twins and working in a public relations capacity for the soft drink company her husband headed for many years.

She will make one of her comparatively rare television appearances Thursday night on CBS' "Zane Grey Theatre,"; playing a dual role in "One Must Die."

"Dick Powell is the only television producer of Westerns I like to work for," she said, referring to Powell in his capacity of head of Four Star, one of television's biggest and most successful show-packaging corporations. "He doesn't make a woman look ridiculous in them. Besides, he had this show specially written for me."

TV Show Titles Can Be Sneaky

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP TV-Radio Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Sneaky show titles, carefully constructed to include—no matter how inappropriately or awkwardly—a free plug for the sponsor, are not new in television.

The only reason there are not more of them today is that most shows now have at least two sponsors. It would defeat the plug's purpose to evolve, for instance, a show title like "The Puffo-Bijou-Anfrang Playhouse starring Frankie Chicago and his Talking Chimp."

Actually, in spite of the shrewd planning for the title plug, the idea doesn't work out very well in practice. Most newspapers and magazines refuse to go along with the plot, and the general public can't be bothered with the formal names.

Most of us refer to the Perry Como Show, the Dinah Shore Show, the Huntley-Brinkley newscast, Circle Theatre, Steel Hour, Telephone Hour, the Nanette Fabray Show. Not one of these identifications is the program's official title.

However, what is possibly the most unwieldy, cumbersome title of all has now been evolved by some title-thinker-uppers at CBS—and no sponsor plug is mixed up in it. It is "CBS Reports Presents Face the Nation."

Starting Jan. 26, the network will "consolidate" two of its public affairs shows. Weekly "Face the Nation" will be produced only every other Thursday night, alternating with "CBS Reports."

Recommended tonight: Nanette Fabray Show, NBC, 8:30-9 Eastern Standard Time—premiere of a new situation comedy series; Telephone Hour, NBC, 9-10—musical program with Renata Tebaldi, Jose Iturbi, Shirley Jones and Maria Tallchief.

Indiana Central Romps To 82-68 Win Over Clan

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The MacMurray Highlanders absorbed their third loss to go with eight wins at the hands of a rugged Indiana Central squad, 82-68. The Highlanders, once again ran up against cold shooting as they sank only 24 of 84 attempts from the field for a fairly low, 28%. Indiana jumped off to a 15 point lead in the first few minutes of play and the Highlanders applied a full court press midway in the first half. The press gave them new life and they pulled to within 6 points of the winners at half time, but the second half was a repeat performance as Indiana poured on the steam, and led by as much as 22 points before the final few minutes. The winners out rebounded MacMurray 63-43 and picked up their ninth win to go with four losses.

Hewitt Hafer has resigned as football coach at Eureka high school but he will stay as baseball mentor of the Hornets. He coached basketball at Eureka high for four years before taking over the football duties two years ago succeeding Herb Hasenyager. LeRoy Macklin, former football mentor at Canton high and physical education instructor this year, is a patient at the Phelps hospital in Macomb as he was admitted during the Christmas holidays while visiting his parents in that city.

Coach Larry Simmons of East St. Louis (Lincoln) high wants to schedule three games for his football team next season. The Tigers play a tough chart and have sent several stars to play in the college ranks. Earl "Little Tree" Harris is the basketball coach at Lincoln high of East St. Louis for the sixth year and his team will play at Canton high next season.

Elmer Hunter spent four years at Columbia high before moving to Clinton high as cage boss last year. He has tutored the Maroons to first place in the Pontiac Holiday tourney and don't be surprised to see Clinton in the State tourney. Clinton beat Waukegan and Springfield in the Pontiac meet in one day and that is quite a chore for any ball club.

Stan Borgman has another tall team this season at Fulton high and the "Steamers" might be tough by tournament time. Coach Don Talbott has a veteran five at DePue and the "Little Giants" have lost only one game this season. Talbott played basketball at DePue under Coach Gaston Freeman and starred at Western Illinois University. Other DePue high mentors were Francis Hopkinson and Joe Walton who coached Iowa's standout Ron Zager during the 1956-57 season.

Roger Izard of Jacksonville is coaching Wenona high basketball players for the second year as he succeeded James T. Schuldt, former Dundee and Illinois cage standout. It was on Feb. 15, 1930 that Wenona high defeated Toluca 26-22 for the Marshall County second team championship and it took 10 overtimes to complete the game. The game was based on eight minute quarters and three minute overtimes; the actual playing time was one hour and two minutes. Wenona had a 14-4 halftime lead but Toluca scored 11 points in the last half to one for Wenona to end the game at 15-15. Both teams failed to score in the initial overtime and each scored to end the second overtime at 17-17. It remained that score through five more overtimes and at the end of the 8th extra period it was 19-19 and 21-21 at the end of 9 overtime sessions. Wenona won it in the 10th overtime with five points to a single point for Toluca's Wildcats.

John (Dutch) Meinen, athletic director at Bradley University, announced Wednesday that national television contracts have officially signed for the Marquette game (Jan 28) and St. Louis contest (March 4). Ticket holders for the Bradley Robertson field house games should remember they will take place at 1 p.m. instead of 8 p.m. as printed on the ducats.

EUREKA — The Illinois College Blueboys dropped their fifth straight game and second in three contests by one point 67-66 to a rough-house crew of Eureka Redmen. Coach Bill Merris' Blueboys jumped off to an early lead, and built the margin to 18 points midway in the first half, but the Redmen whittled away and cut the deficit to 7 at half-time 38-31. Eureka turned to rough and tumble basketball in the second 20 minute period, and it proved to be what they needed for the victory The Blueboys clung to the lead they had built up, but with 5 seconds left in the game, Matta tipped in a rebound for Eureka, and they took their only lead of the contest, 67-66, for the win. North Carolina May Be Next On NCAA's Ban List

By JIM KENSIL
Associated Press Sports Writer

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Is North Carolina next?

A year ago Friday Oklahoma was placed on indefinite probation by the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Sooners still are there.

Indiana and Kansas since have joined the list which also includes Auburn, Montana State College and Arizona State University.

It is known the North Carolina Tar Heels have been under investigation for basketball recruiting practices. Coach Frank McGuire has gained renown with his teams loaded with Northern imports.

The powerful NCAA Council meets Saturday and Sunday. By Monday night it should be ready to announce if any more colleges have been found guilty of violating the NCAA code.

Southern California and Tulsa are scheduled to be restored to good graces during the NCAA's annual convention which opens officially Monday after a weekend of preliminary meetings.

If North Carolina is found innocent, there will be no announcement, but if found guilty, the sixth-ranked Tar Heels may be denied an opportunity to complete for the NCAA championship.

McGuire's unbeaten 1957 team won 32 games, including the NCAA title, 54-53 over Kansas in triple overtime.

Echoes of that battle were heard last October when the NCAA found Kansas guilty because 1957-58 All-America Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain received a car in violation of the NCAA code. Kansas also got in hot water for football recruiting, as did Louisiana.

Oklahoma's difficulty, too, was football recruiting.

St. John's Takes Easy Victory From Temple

NEW YORK (AP)—Fifth-ranked St. John's started slowly and then picked up speed for an easy 81-60 basketball victory over Temple University in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

The Redmens' Leroy Ellis and Tony Jackson led the scoring parade with 27 points each.

It was a close game for 13 minutes with the lead alternating. However, after Russ Gordon's two free throws gave the Owls a 19-18 advantage, Jackson came back with a jumper and two free throws to put the Redmen ahead for good.

Temple was within one point with about six minutes remaining in the half but St. John's ran off 11 straight, to take a commanding 35-23 edge which grew to 41-28 at halftime.

GEORGIA'S NEW COACH

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — Georgia-bred and schooled Johnny L. Griffith, freshman coach and chief recruiter since 1959, is the new head football coach at the University of Georgia.

The athletic board Friday se-

Doyle Royal has been coaching the University of Maryland soccer team 13 seasons.

Jurgensen Has To Earn Role Of Quarterback

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sonny Jurgensen, heir-apparent to the all-important job of quarterbacking the Philadelphia Eagles, said Friday he "still has to get out on the field and earn it."

When Norm Van Brocklin departed the Eagles Thursday after failing to get the head coaching post he sought with the National Football League champions, Jurgensen and Jerry Reichow remained the lone candidates to succeed the brilliant Dutchman as signal caller.

Jurgensen has been with the Eagles since they drafted the one-time Duke ace in 1957. But he has been used primarily as the man to hold the ball on point-after touchdown and field goal attempts.

Yet, in the Eagles last two regular 1960 games, Jurgensen showed brilliantly.

"Those two games helped me a lot," says Sonny. "Of course, I think I can do it. I always thought I could. That's why I stayed around here."

Retired Coach Buck Shaw said he had great faith in Jurgensen's ability, a sentiment echoed by other members of the NFL champs.

Finley May Give A's Followers Veeck's Tactics

CHICAGO (AP) — The new boss of the Kansas City A's, who already has hired the man who originally put the White Sox on their feet, also may copy the promotional tactics of White Sox major domo, Bill Veeck.

This was indicated Friday as Charles O. Finley, an insurance executive, plunked down more than $2 million for 52 per cent of the A's stock.

The deal for the majority holdings of the late Arnold Johnson was completed in the City National Bank. In return for checks totaling $2,175,000, Finley was handed 2,599 of the A's total of 5,000 shares.

Finley Tuesday hired Frank Lane from the Cleveland Indians as new general manager of the A's, who finished no better than seventh the last five years. Ever since Lane hauled the White Sox out of the doldrums in the early 1950s, Finley has admired his skill as a general manager.

Finley has an equally high regard for Veeck — he of the explosive scoreboard and, seemingly, a gimmick a minute.

To what extent would Finley, as new A's president, emulate President Veeck of the White Sox?

"Just say I hope to provide the enjoyment for fans in Kansas City that Veeck has done for fans in Chicago," said Finley. "Yes, we may have a new scoreboard, but I can't say now what kind."

Canton Spoils JHS Bid In Final Moments

By STAN SPOTTS

Canton High's Little Giants erased a determined bid for victory by an inspired Crimson quintet in the final minutes of play at the Bowl Friday night to claim a 53-48 victory.

Jacksonville played a control game and matched the winners for three and a half quarters but Canton pulled ahead with 3:19 remaining on a bucket by ace Dick Brown and the Crimsons couldn't catch up.

The Jacks, who broke out new uniforms for the first home game of the new year, didn't make any mistakes in the first quarter and got balanced scoring from Baldwin, Yates, Norton, Sims and Tomhave to garner a five point margin after eight minutes of play, 12-7 The Crimsons also controlled the boards, 9-6, for the only time in the game but their deliberate style of play and shifting defense was the contributing factor in the early lead.

Coach John Chapman's quintet garnered their biggest lead of the game 1:34 after the second period got underway on a free throw by Ron Tomhave, 13-7, but Jacksonville's old nemesis—bad passes—came into action and Canton gradually cut the margin with Brown ripping the cords for 12 points in the chapter. The Little Giants also snared 11 rebounds to JHS' 5. With 2:17 showing before halftime, guard John Cruser hit a driving layup to break a 19-19 deadlock and Canton scored four more points via Brown's touch for a 25-19 halftime spread.

Jacksonville made a fine comeback in the third stanza and saw the lead three times on some clutch shooting by Chip Baldwin. Although the score was never tied in this period, the lead changed hands five time before Jacksonville speared a 34-33 lead with 16 seconds remaining on two free throws by Ken Norton.

The final canto was tight all the way as the two teams struggled to go ahead to stay but both couldn't be denied as they produced five tie scores and the lead changed between them six times before Brown's bucket with 3:19 turned the trick for the winners The Crimsons connected for only two field goals in the final quarter but stayed in contention with 10 charity tosses.

Broken down by quarters Jacksonville hit 5-13, 3-11, 6-13, and 2-11. Canton hit on 3-11, 8-16, 4-14 and 5-11. Both quintets missed nine free throws each. Canton held the upper hand in rebounding, 35-24, and from the field, 20-16.

Dick Brown, Canton's 6-4 center, took game laurels with 24 points. Jacksonville's balanced scoring was led by Chip Baldwin's 12 markers followed by Ron Yates' 11 and Ron Tomhave's 10. Chapman's first five starters did a splendid job in containing Canton and with the exception of a few costly passes they played almost flawless ball.

Rockets Deal Tallula 71-42 Setback To Claim 9th Victory

Coach Bob Winstead's Routt Rockets matched their highest output for any game this year against a hapless Tallula Flyer quintet, and picked up their ninth win in thirteen games, 71-42. The Rockets were never headed in the contest, but the Flyers pulled within two points, 18-16 with 5:10 left in the second quarter.

Winstead's Rockets displayed a potent semi-press, and caused many a Tallula pass to miss its mark, not to mention the numerous violations of traveling and double dribble which the Flyers were guilty of. Routt, meanwhile matched their season's high of 71 points, which they scored in the Waverly Holiday Tournament against Northwestern.

Curtis and Lawless scored six points apiece in the first period as the Rockets moved off to a 15-6 lead at the break. Tallula made their only serious bid of the evening when they put together three straight buckets and pulled to within two points of Routt, but the Rockets pulled away and led 32-23 at half time, on the strength of a 14 point performance by Fred Curtis.

The second half was uneventful, and Winstead substituted freely and saw nine men joining the scoring column. Curtis led all point-getters with 23 points, and Mike Bottom topped Tallula by scoring just half of their 42 points. Bottom, a sophomore, also broke a fine free throw shooting streak when in the fourth quarter he missed his 20th shot, after making 19 straight from the charity line.

TIME FOR VIOLENCE

By Noel M. Loomis

© Noel Loomis 1960 Distributed by Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

XXIV

They rode out across the prairie, and an hour later Bart saw dust off to their left against the sun. He spoke to Arrington, who studied it.

"Somebody's making tracks for Mobeetie," Arrington said.

"Trying to waylay us?"

"I don't think so." But Arrington was puzzled. "I don't know, though. They must have come from the place we just left."

They pulled into Mobeetie about dark. The one dusty main street was lined with saloons, and already the oil lamps were lighted and the player pianos were pounding.

Arrington turned off at a hotel and into a street unlighted even by the faint yellow glimmer of a saloon lamp, and pounded on a door in a small building.

"Sheriff in?" asked Arrington.

"He went to Dodge yesterday to see Charlie Bassett."

"You won't have any trouble with these men," said Arrington. "Watch the ugly one. The other will be out in a few days."

"I want a lawyer," said Bart.

"How about money?"

Bart said, "I've got my six-shooters."

Arrington considered. "I know a young fellow who will take you on credit. And I will leave your hardware with the jailer here· name is Taylor."

He was locked into a tiny iron-barred cell next to Gentry, who lay on the floor and went to sleep, snoring raucously.

Half an hour later Taylor came back with his lantern, leading Allen, a youngish man trying to grow a red mustache.

"How soon can I get out of here?" Bart demanded.

Allen shook his head. "If what Arrington says is right, we'll probably get you out as soon as we get a hearing."

"All right," Bart said impatiently. "When can we have a hearing—in the morning?"

Allen shook his head. "Arrington was willing. He said he would stay over long enough to testify in the morning; he didn't think Jones would be here, although he told him to appear. But we can't find the justice."

"Why?"

"Somebody rode in about a half hour ago and offered him $20 to ride out somewhere and perform a wedding."

"Then he should be back in the morning."

Allen shook his head. "He sent word he'd be back Tuesday."

Bart shouted, "Get me a habeas corpus!"

"I'm sorry," Allen said, "there's no possibility of any legal action of any sort until we can get hold of a judge."

* * *

He awoke late the next morning. Taylor was pounding on the bars of the door. "Lady to see you!"

It was Catherine who came in! Her head was bare and her black hair gleaming in the early sun until the jailer closed the outer door. "Bart!" she said softly. She reached through the bars and hugged his arm. "Bart, I brought you cornbread and fresh coffee. I made it this morning."

He felt her shoulders. "How did you get here?" he asked.

"I rode. I started as soon as you left."

"Aren't you afraid they'll burn your place?"

"Mr. Goodnight said he didn't think they would do it now. There has been too much fuss."

"You were on the road two nights?" he asked.

"One. I stayed at the JA the first night. Last night I camped on the prairie about 12 miles southwest of here."

She was there within his touch, and he couldn't keep from remembering how she felt in his arms, and for the moment he would ask no further questions. "Open the pail," he said. "I'm hungry."

She pulled a clean cloth out of the pail and revealed a heap of squares of yellow, fragrant cornbread.

"It's warm!" he said. "How on earth—"

"I brought the things with me, and made it out on the prairie this morning. Coffee too."

"You astound me very time you turn around," he said.

* * *

She said brightly, "There's a surprise under the bottom napkin."

He reached again through the bars and lifted the torn square of bed sheet that had been on the bottom. He stared in the dimness at a .38, and dropped the cloth back hastily. "Do you know what you're up to?" he demanded.

"Of course. Mr. Goodnight said they were getting rid of you until after court was held Monday, and I decided to spend some of my money for this six-shooter and a sack of tobacco." She looked at him.

He drew a deep breath. "Right now it's about the only way I can get to Clarendon by Monday." He reached through the bars and took the six-shooter from under the cloth.

Opening lead—♠Q

BY OSWALD JACOBY
Written for Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Safety plays which are designed to insure a contract against bad breaks are primarily for rubber bridge. At duplicate you usually go after all the tricks.

Any good rubber bridge player would look over dummy for a moment and note that seven no-trump would have been a nice contract. Then he would see that his six no-trump contract would blow up in his face if he tried for seven and all four diamonds appeared in one hand.

Then he would lead a diamond and duck in dummy to insure his contract against that potential bad break.

What should declarer do at duplicate?

He should make the rubber bridge safety play!

The reason is that declarer should note that seven is a pretty good contract and that most pairs will have bid the grand slam. Hence, his only chance for a good score is to find all four diamonds in one hand.

Furthermore, he should see that if the diamonds do break he will still get a couple of points for making just six no-trump. Some North will surely be playing six diamonds.
